WHERE PRESIDENTS MEET — Meetings between President Nixon of U.S. and President Pompidou of France are being held in Reykjavik, Iceland.

Nixon, Pompidou Open Discussion

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — President Georges Pompidou of France warned President Nixon today that there would be "great danger" in any unilateral cutback of America's 300,000 strong military force in Europe.

In the first session of the French-American summit conference, the two leaders ranged widely over the problems confronting the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Their exchanges were "very useful and constructive," a French spokesman said after the 2½-hour meeting which ran on 30 minutes beyond its scheduled span.

While Nixon and Pompidou were focusing on the political and strategic issues of the transatlantic partnership, their foreign and finance ministers were meeting separately on the more practical and technical problems that divide the United States and France.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Foreign Minister Michel Jobert examined the tense situation in the Mideast, in Vietnam where a frail peace settlement is barely hanging together and in Cambodia where fighting persists. On each of these issues there were gaps between the two sides.

On the money, trade and economic front, Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz and Finance Minister Valéry Giscard d'Estaing discussed ways in which key governments can act to help restore a stable world monetary system. Here, too, American and French ideas differed.

Ronald L. Ziegler, White House press secretary, told newsmen the emphasis in the first presidential exchanges was on "the evolution in the future of the Atlantic alliance." He reported that Henry A. Kissinger, the President's adviser on national security affairs, sat in the entire session. Pompidou was accompanied only by his own interpreter.

In discussion of the future of the transatlantic partnership Pompidou, according to his spokesman, insisted on "the extraordinary importance of the presence of U.S. troops in Europe and on the great danger of a unilateral reduction of these troops."

His meaning, on the basis of known French positions, seemed clear.

Pompidou was signalling, in the first place, France would resist any U.S. move to bargain defense concessions to the European allies for economic concessions.

The Nixon administration has disavowed any such intention.

The French, nevertheless, suspect deals of this kind could result from Kissinger's proposal for linking negotiations on transatlantic political, defense and economic subjects.

The French leader also had in mind the current conference in Vienna on East-West force cuts.

France has stayed out of these talks.

Showdown Again Draws Near On State Lottery Bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A showdown is near in the Ohio House on a bill that takes the first step toward creation of a state lottery, but sponsors are not optimistic.

Sen. Ronald M. Mottl, D-24 Parma, has a backup bill ready and will offer it immediately if the worst of his fears about the pending measure materialize.

A joint conference committee agreed 5-1 Wednesday on the proposal which would establish a state lottery commission. But it was virtually the same proposal rejected by House Republicans May 10. GOP support is needed to get the bill through with an immediately effective emergency clause.

The committee session came on a busy legislative day that included the first big setback for a major bill allowing Ohio cities to utilize private capital to eliminate slums.

Members of both parties ripped into the measure, mainly a provision that would permit private corporations to use the power of eminent domain to develop blighted areas.

Rep. Thomas Fries, D-35 Dayton, and other sponsors, saw support for their bill slipping and finally asked that it be returned to the House Local Government Committee. The House agreed.

In other developments:

—The House added its approval to a Senate bill exempting motion picture projectionists from prosecution in the showing of allegedly obscene films. The vote was 62-29 after rejection of amendments to make projectionists liable after being notified by a prosecutor, and to add other non-organized theater employees to the exemption.

—The House approved and sent to the Senate measures conforming Ohio's gunsmith law with the Federal Consumer Protection Act, requiring big county election boards to remain open until 9 p.m. one night each week to register voters, and requiring insurance companies to notify the state of disciplinary actions against them in other states.

—The Senate passed three bills and sent them to the House, among them a bill to standardize procedures for the administration of rollback and homestead exemptions in property tax relief laws. The others make it a misdemeanor to occupy a travel or house trailer while it is on a highway, and allow female public employees to use sick leave for pregnancies.

—Senators completed passage of a House bill that allows a driver's license to be used as bond in certain traffic arrest cases. Sponsors said the measure would save arresting officers 70,000 man hours a year and, in the case of the Ohio Highway Patrol, be the same as hiring 45 additional officers.

Mottl, who also sponsored the constitutional amendment that lifted a state ban against lotteries May 8, wants the commission bill passed as an emergency measure so that a lottery can be created this year. The legislature would probably adjourn before it could act on commission recommendations under a regular bill that didn't take effect for 90 days, he said.

The Parma Democrat has as an alternative bill that would sidestep the commission approach and have the legislature vote directly to create a lottery. He said if the lottery is not set up this year, the state stands to lose $21 million or more.

Rep. Joseph P. Tulley, R-59 Mentor, who represented House Republicans on the conference committee, said the committee action represented "an exercise in futility."

WASHINGTON (AP) — John D. Ehrlichman blames a former deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency for its role in the Watergate coverup.

And the former White House adviser says he can't recall asking for CIA assistance that E. Howard Hunt used in the Ellsberg burglary.

Ehrlichman's testimony conflicts with that of present and former CIA officials. The Senate Appropriations subcommittee on intelligence today called former presidential chief of staff H.R. Haldeman to give his version in a closed session.

Ehrlichman testified behind closed doors Wednesday, then gave newsmen a 17-page transcript of his prepared testimony. The question-and-answer portion of his testimony wasn't released.

Ehrlichman said he wouldn't have ordered restrictions on the FBI's Watergate investigation last year if CIA Deputy Director Vernon Walters had stated flatly that there was no danger of uncovering secret CIA operations in Mexico.

But instead, Ehrlichman said, Walters gave an "equivocal response" during a meeting in June 1972, shortly after the Watergate raid. Haldeman and former CIA Director Richard Helms also were at the meeting.

On the Ellsberg matter, Ehrlichman said he hasn't the faintest recollection of making a telephone call which former CIA Deputy Director Robert Cushman swears he received around July 7, 1971.

Ehrlichman said it is possible someone else called Cushman and used his name. He also said Cushman wrote him a memorandum earlier this year saying he couldn't recall who made the telephone call.

On May 11 Cushman gave a sworn affidavit to House investigators saying he received the call from Ehrlichman, who "stated that Howard Hunt was a bona fide employee, a consultant on security matters, and that Hunt would come to see me and request assistance which Mr. Ehrlichman requested that I give."

Subsequently Hunt obtained disguises, forged identification, a camera, a recorder and other gear used in the burglary Sept. 3, 1971, of Dr. Lewis Fielding, a Beverly Hills, Calif., psychiatrist who treated Pentagon papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg.

In other Watergate-related developments:

—Rep. Charles H. Wilson, chairman of a House Post Office subcommittee, asked Postmaster General E. T. Klassen to investigate reports that mail intended for two Democratic presidential candidates last year was tampered with by the Post Office.

George B. Gould, an aide to Wilson, said he has learned that some mail of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie was read and copied in the Washington Post Office during Muskie's New Hampshire campaign, and that letters intended for Sen. George McGovern were tampered with while the South Dakotan was campaigning in Florida.

—A tentative Sept. 11 trial date was set in New York for former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans, financier Robert Vesco and New Jersey Republican leader Harry Sears in connection with a secret donation to President Nixon's 1972 campaign. U.S. District Court Judge Lee Gagliardi said the trial could come even earlier.

The four are charged with obstruction of justice and conspiracy.

—U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica approved a Justice Department request for a 20-day delay in granting immunity to ousted White House Counsel John W. Dean III and Jeb Stuart Magruder, former deputy director of the Nixon campaign. The two are seeking immunity from prosecution for whatever they testify before the Senate Watergate committee.

Intelligence Agency Cloud Slips

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Central Intelligence Agency's cloak is slipping.

Licensed for secrecy by law and long practice, the intelligence agency is coming under unfamiliar scrutiny in the fallout of the Watergate affair.

President Nixon hinted at the scope of covert CIA operations when he said he feared some of them might be compromised by an immediate, unrestricted investigation of the political wiretapping.

Now there is conflicting congressional testimony as to how that came to be translated into the orders and understandings that figured in the initial Watergate coverup.

Four congressional panels have been looking into that, and into acknowledged CIA involvement in the Daniel Ellsberg-Pentagon papers case.

The law that created the agency 26 years ago forbids its involvement in internal-security functions. But the Ellsberg case, and Nixon's account of an intelligence plan he said was not implemented, involve domestic activities.

To this point, the CIA cover is intact so far as what it spends—and how—is concerned.

Nixon's budget for the year beginning July 1 lists the CIA followed by a blank in the space for its spending proposals. It has been done that way since the agency was created.

The budget is secret. CIA spending is estimated to be in the neighborhood of $750 million, but only a handful of senior members of Congress know for sure.

One of them, Sen. Milton R. Young, R-N.D., said the CIA appropriation is less than $1 billion a year.

Five senior members of the House defense appropriations subcommittee examine CIA spending requests, rule on them, then tack them onto other categories in the defense budget to keep them secret.

The procedure is the same in the Senate, despite repeated attempts to require submission of an over-all budget figure, at least to other members of Congress.

Once the appropriation is passed, the money can be spent as the CIA director—and there have been three since December—deems necessary.

Richard Helms was succeeded by James R. Schlesinger, who has since moved to the Pentagon. William E. Colby is now acting director.

The agency reports directly to the President.

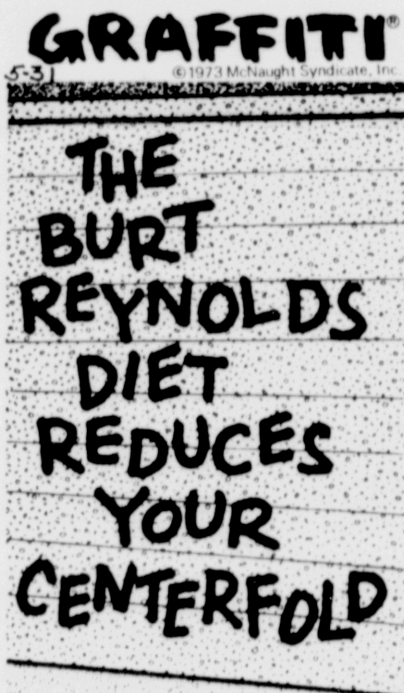

Under a 1949 act, the CIA keeps secret the titles, salaries and numbers of personnel it employs. Estimates of manpower range from 15,000 to 18,000.

The agency was organized during the presidency of the late Harry S. Truman, who wrote 10 years ago, after the Bay of Pigs invasion attempt:

"I never had any thought when I set up the CIA that it would be injected into peacetime cloak-and-dagger operations."

Hijackers Hold 69 In Colombia

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — The hijackers of a Colombian airliner today dropped their demands for the release of 140 leftist prisoners here but raised their money ransom from $200,000 to $400,000.

The four-engine turboprop Electra was on the ground in Aruba, a Dutch island in the Caribbean north of Venezuela.

The aircraft took off from there before dawn today with the two masked hijackers and their hostages for Lima, Peru, but it was forced to return to Aruba because the engines' oil ran low.

A report from Princess Beatriz Airport in Aruba said the hijackers then permitted 33 women and children to leave the aircraft for food and medical attention. That left 56 passengers and crewmen remaining on board with the hijackers.

The plane was hijacked in Colombia Wednesday by the hijackers armed with submachine guns. Early today the Colombian government rejected the hijackers' original demands. Later the pilot, Capt. Jorge Lucena, reported to his superiors in Colombia that this irritated the hijackers and that the situation had become tense. The men had threatened to blow the plane up with all aboard if the government failed to meet their demands.

Two years ago Lucena foiled another hijack attempt by grabbing what turned out to be a fake hand grenade.

President Misael Pastrana conferred with other Colombian officials Wednesday night. Government sources said the hijackers' demands were unclear and therefore would probably be turned down.

The government was confident, the sources said, that the hijackers would give in and continue to Cuba.

Colombian authorities asked Dutch officials in Aruba for "protection for the passengers and crew of the aircraft."

The plane carried 85 passengers and a crew of five on a domestic flight from Cali in western Colombia to Medellin when it was taken over. Eighteen women and children were allowed off after the landing at the island 20 miles north of the Venezuelan coast.

Lucena said the hijackers demanded that the Colombian government send 140 "political prisoners" to Panama where they could be picked up and flown to Cuba. Those designated by the hijackers were arrested last year during a crackdown on the leftist National Liberation Army, but only about 40 of them remain in custody, the government said.

INJURED — Bruce Hardman, 20, 118½ Seyfert Ave., is wheeled to a waiting ambulance by Wes Barton and Ptl. William Pontious after being injured in a car-motorcycle accident 1:15 p.m. Wednesday on W. High St., 100 feet west of N. Court St. According to the report of Ptl. Pontious, Hardman was riding his motorcycle east on High St. when he struck the right rear of a westbound car driven by Harold Osborne Grant who was attempting to make a left turn into an alley. Hardman was treated and released at Berger Hospital. Pontious cited Grant for failure to yield the right of way.

Auto Club Urges Members To Fly Whenever Possible

WILLOUGHBY, Ohio (AP) — The American Automobile Association is suggesting to its members that they fly, then rent cars when they reach their destinations, if they must travel this summer.

The AAA said it expects gasoline to be in critically short supply in some states.

A. K. Murway, public affairs director of the Cleveland Automobile Club, said the shortage in the southeastern states is the most critical.

The AAA said there are 40,300 gasoline stations in the southeast and that 189 are already closed and 656 are threatening to close within a week. The situation will worsen, it added.

The second most critical area includes the states around Ohio.

There are 44,000 stations in that region. The AAA said 165 are closed, and 200 more are threatening to shut down within the week.

Less critical but worth watching are California, Nevada and Arizona and the northwestern states adjacent to Washington and Oregon, the AAA says in its national fuel gage report, to be issued Monday.

States in the Kansas-Iowa area are the least critical, Murway said.

The Cleveland office of the Canadian Government Travel Bureau said Canada does not have a fuel shortage and doesn't anticipate one.

Murway said the AAA is recommending that its members fly to their destinations, then rent a car.

He also said that special warnings are being issued to motorists traveling to Florida and New England, especially over summer weekends.

"We think there is a likelihood that travelers may become stranded in the western national parks, in the Southeast and in the New England area," Murway said.

The Ohio picture is unpredictable at this time due to Sohio's role as a major supplier of gasoline, he added. The company, which has had refinery problems, controls 25 per cent of the

2 Motorists Cited After Accidents

George B. Elsass, 30, Chillicothe, was charged with driving while under the influence of drugs following investigation of an accident on Route 104 south of Route 22 4 p.m. Wednesday.

Elsass was taken to Berger Hospital where he was treated for a bump on the head. Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Billy Huffman filed the charge in Circleville Municipal Court this morning. A hearing date on the charge was set June 21. Judge Sterling Lamb set bond at $500.

According to the sheriff's report, Elsass was southbound on Route 104, drove off the right side of the road for nearly 75 feet, went back across the road for 100 feet and continued another 54 feet, spinning around and striking the guard rail with the rear of his car.

James H. Ramey, 27, Route 1, Ashville, was charged with driving while intoxicated by Deputy Sheriff Lowell Ferguson following an accident at 10:15 p.m. on the Circleville-Ashville-Fairfield Road just west of Circleville-Groveport Road.

Ramey was eastbound, lost control of his car going off the right side of the road for 48 feet before striking a mailbox of Roger Kline. He came back onto the road and left the scene. Ramey was apprehended 30 minutes later by Deputy Ferguson on the Bell Station Road.

Rain Hurts Crop Activity

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Gene R. Abercrombie, director of the Ohio Department of Agriculture, says that unless the steady rains of recent weeks taper off in the next week Ohio farmers face the worst cropgrowing season in decades.

"I hate to call it a disaster year, but we're going to have to have a break in the weather next week or we're really in trouble," Abercrombie said Wednesday.

Major crops affected include corn and soybeans.

Abercrombie said many of Ohio's 109,000 farmers may face bankruptcy because of the wet fields. Another likely effect is a further rise in food prices.

If prices are forced upward, Abercrombie said, it is "important" for the public to know that the weather is to blame.

Medical Care To Cost More

WASHINGTON (AP) — Medicare patients will be paying 50 cents a month more each for insurance premiums covering doctor bills and a wide range of other medical services beginning July 1.

Monthly Part B premiums go from $5.80 to $6.30 on July 1.

A $10 increase in the annual deductible before Medicare benefits are paid went into effect in January, bringing the deductible to $60.

The Nixon administration's proposal to add another $700 million a year to Medicare recipients' medical and hospital bills has met stiff resistance in Congress, however.

Legislation designed to put the proposed increases into effect Jan. 1, 1974, reportedly still is bottled up in the Office of Management and Budget.

More than half the Senate has signed a statement opposing the plan, and Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, has vowed it will never pass.

Under Social Security Act amendments passed last year, about 1.7 million disabled persons under 65 and an estimated 10,000 to 15,000 persons suffering from chronic kidney disease will be covered by Medicare for the first time starting Friday.

Part A Medicare is hospital insurance for which eligibility is automatic when a person qualifies for Social Security. Part B is optional, covers physicians' bills and certain medical supplies, and requires a monthly premium payment.

Algebra Magic Promoted By Solon

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Columbus lawmaker is asking Ohio to spend $1.5 million on an educational venture under which children from poor racial minority areas "can succeed brilliantly in advanced algebra in the lowest elementary grades."

Rep. Phale Hale, D-31 Columbus, introduced in the legislature a measure permitting state financing in a non-profit national program known as SEED, Special Elementary Education for the Disadvantaged.

Disadvantaged children having trouble with letters and reading can be taught, even in the fourth and fifth grades, advanced college math, says Brian Stetcher, Columbus SEED project director.

The Columbus program has been in operation for the past nine months with funds provided by the state under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965. Hale's bill would seek to expand it statewide on a pilot basis.

Stetcher said the Columbus teachers, who serve voluntarily after a training program, came from Battelle Memorial Institute, Bell Laboratories and Ohio State University.

"Advanced mathematicians get real excited about working with elementary school pupils," he said.

William P. Jontz, founder of the program which now is funded by the legislatures of California and Michigan, said students not only learn advanced math concepts quickly, "but they also develop a greater self-confidence that enables them to do better in other studies."

Stetcher and Hale set up a demonstration for the education committees of the Senate and House May 22 with a class of fourth-grade youngsters from Fair Ave. School in Columbus.

Hale's bill would provide for state grants to school districts with disadvantaged pupils—defined in the 1965 federal act—for supplies and other costs, and authorize them to enter into contracts with SEED for evaluation work.

It calls for an appropriation of $690,000 for each of the next two fiscal years, $52,000 each year for contracts, and $7,500 each year for legislative monitoring.

Schools offering the program would be required to teach each disadvantaged pupil four times a week in classes 40 to 60 minutes in duration.

Rogers Notes Nationalism

WASHINGTON (AP) — "The growing feeling of nationalism" in every country he visited is the most significant impression reported after a 17-day trip to Latin America by Secretary of State William P. Rogers.

"We do not see why we can't cooperate fully with this sense of nationalism," he said.

Rogers said he foresees a greater global role for Latin America, especially in such areas as fishing rights and trade and monetary reform.

Speaking at a swearing-in ceremony Tuesday for Jack B. Kubisch, the new assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, Rogers expressed sympathy for Latin American complaints about the hemispheric trade deficit, which has averaged $600 million in recent years.

Rogers, who returned Monday night from an eight-country tour, said that, contrary to some news reports, the nationalistic feelings apparent in the countries he visited carry no anti-American overtones. The secretary said "there was not one hostile act" directed at him during his trip.

Inflation's Sway

Individuals tend to look at inflation as it affects their own spending habits, with little regard for the effects elsewhere in the nation or the world. But inflation is a world-wide problem, which takes bigger bites out of some economies than others. The result can be a further disruption in common economic interests, such as trade.

The disparity becomes clearer when comparing national rates of inflation. The United States now has an inflation rate of about 6 per cent. The cost of goods has risen about 12 per cent since 1969. But during the period inflation in Japan was 19.1 per cent, in Britain 20.9 per cent, Denmark 17.4 per cent, the Philippines 30 per cent, Nigeria 35.3 per cent, with some other countries experiencing still higher rates.

Brazil is the unfortunate leader of the inflation pack, with a cost growth of 389 per cent since 1969. West Germany's rate of inflation is now higher than that of the U.S., and increasing. Thus, inflation has become a universal problem, differing only in the degree of severity.

These differences will be emphasized in trade negotiations between the U.S. and the Common Market later this year. The U.S. is in a better bargaining position than most countries.

Planned Chaos

A decade of experimentation in some companies to find both more pleasant working conditions and increased productivity is how the 1970s are being increasingly described. That is a good combination if you can find it, and some firms are succeeding.

In the process they are breaking some long-held beliefs about the efficient organization of labor. Four-day and even three-day work weeks, while not yet common, are among the innovations receiving at least as much favorable mention as unfavorable.

Another system, still more radical, is being tried in a very limited number of special situations. It is a choose-your-own hours work schedule. Under the plan a company will operate 12 hours a day, with the employee determining for himself which eight hours he will work.

Sound chaotic? One plant, which now has 40 of its 70 employees on "gliding time," reports output has increased and overtime has declined. It further explains some individuals work better early in the day while others are more efficient during evening hours.

Not mentioned are the benefits to working mothers and others with outside responsibilities to fulfill.

Employee morale and increased productivity go hand in hand. One of the most valuable members of the management team has become the one who can program greater employee contentment into the necessary confines of work requirements.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Can you explain how stress and emotional tensions affect the many organs of the body? You often refer to this relationship, but I don't understand how it works.

Mr. N.C., Pa.

Dear Mr. C.:

All stress, physical, emotional, and mental, is an ongoing process in all our daily activities. Rarely is anyone free from pressure of one kind or another.

Each one has his own threshold or level of tolerance to the impact of these stresses. Some people react with extreme emotion to relatively insignificant pressures. Others may not be disturbed by more severe pressures.

It is interesting that the threshold can vary at different times in the same person. People who have a high tolerance may, under special circumstances, react more intensely than at other times.

Dr. Hans Selye of Canada is considered one of the foremost specialists on stress and its effect on the body organs. Dr. Selye believes that there are stages by which man adapts himself to stress. The first is the alarm reaction, a response to infection, burn, injury or emotional tension.

The second phase is the stage of resistance during which the hormones and chemicals of the body are called into action to defend all the organs against the emotional or physical attack. When the body is unable to adapt itself to the stress, diseases of the heart, the kidney, the lung, the blood vessels, and even the joints of the body may result.

Fortunately, the remarkable compensating wonders of the body call on their reserves and are able to withstand the body shock caused by stress.

Whenever adhesive tape is applied to me, I suffer intensely. Why do some people react so severely?

Miss J.B., Tenn.

Dear Miss B.: It is extremely common to develop redness, itching, and swelling of the skin beneath adhesive tape. It is true that there can be an allergic reaction to some of the sticky ingredients that are used. Sometimes the tape is applied too firmly or may be inadvertently rolled around the edges and cause undue friction against the skin. When folds of skin are pressed in this way and when moisture seeps beneath the tape, blisters and marked redness may result.

There are excellent new silk and hypo-allergenic tapes which, when gently applied, can prevent many of these distressing reactions to ordinary adhesive tape.

Overambitious exercise without proper conditioning can produce long periods of painful "Charlie Horses" in muscles that have been resting for many months.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — As Wall Street begins to get frantic over its loss of the small investor, who was unceremoniously showed to the door four or five years ago, other institutions are thinking of moving into the breach.

Commercial banks, for example, have long been able to provide a stock-buying service for their customers, although none of the prominent ones broadcast the fact.

As a courtesy, more or less, the bank merely processed the order for the customer and charged a small fee for doing so. It sent the order on through a broker at the usual commission.

Now that the small investor is wary of Wall Street and often suspicious of brokers, some banks are thinking of expanding the service. A few have.

This month the Chase Manhattan of New York and the Security Pacific National of Los Angeles offered to deduct as little as $20 or as much as $500 from its customers' checking accounts in order to buy stock.

The money deducted will be pooled for the purchase of any of 25 securities each month, with the customer paying the brokerage fee and a bank charge of 5 per cent of the amount purchased. The customer selects the stock.

While this seems to be just another middleman between the small investor and the market, it does offer a partial remedy to some of the biggest problems encountered by individual stock buyers.

Poor record-keeping, for example, has been one of the great weaknesses of the securities industry and probably has done as much as anything to scare away investors.

Banks, however, are clearly better record-keepers than brokers. The banks, moreover, can demand service. Being institutions — which Wall Street today doesn't know whether to love, fear or just respect — they can demand efficiencies of service and discount prices by volume buying.

Many investors will recall that this arrangement sounds very much like the old Monthly Investment Plan once heavily promoted by brokers as the route to people's capitalism.

For as little as $40 a month or a quarter, the MIP permitted individuals to buy shares or fractions of shares on a regular basis and thus, it was said, to participate in the great American wealth-making machine.

For this opportunity, brokers charged a fraction of a point more than other, larger investors paid for the same stock, an amount probably equal to what the banks now will charge for their services.

Richard K. Snouffer, 27, was hired as head basketball coach at Circleville High School to replace Richard Boyd who resigned to take a similar post at Warren High School.

Charles Noble, head of Ohio Highway work, said the State Highway Department planned to erect some sort of sign south of Circleville on Route 23, indicating to motorists that they were approaching the city.

Several of the unofficial tallies registered by candidates in the primary election were altered when the Pickaway County Board of Elections released its official vote count.

Most significant change was in the official tally of the county commissioner race. Charles Morris' narrow margin of a 15-vote victory over incumbent Harley Mace dropped five more votes to give him a 10-vote margin. The final count read Morris, 983, and Mace 973.

The Ashville Broncos boys and girls captured the 1958 Pickaway County track title at the fairgrounds.

I Will Be Indiscreet

By JEFFREY HART

Any columnist writing about Watergate—if, that is, he knows much about the inner workings of Washington—faces a peculiar and indeed tricky problem. He faces it whatever his private political opinions or his view of Richard Nixon.

I call it the gap between actuality and what is normally avowed in print. Confronted with a scandal like Watergate, the reader, I find, expects the columnist to be appalled, surprised and morally outraged. Unless he is outraged, the reader is outraged that he isn't. But there exists an enormous gap between what the press ordinarily tells the public about Washington life and what the press—Reston, Wicker, Alsop, et al—actually know and even freely discuss in private.

Now, certainly, I wish to leave no doubt on one point. In the Watergate scandal, those who broke the law should be punished. But surprise? Hardly, though it may be indiscreet to deny that one is flabbergasted.

Or, if there is any surprise to be registered, it is that the White House blundered so egregiously in not killing the whole thing before it reached its present point of disclosure. The techniques for doing so are known to every professional in Washington.

For the reader who wishes some insight into Washington realities, I strongly recommend Robert N. Winter-Berger's "The Washington Pay-Off," which is now available in paperback.

Read, for example, pages 65 and following, describing first-hand LBJ in John McCormack's office, trying to extricate himself from the unfolding Bobby Baker scandal.

"John, that XXX is going to ruin me. If that XXX talks, I'm gonna land in jail..." Why wasn't it killed, John? ... It's me they're after. It's me they want. ... He's got to take this rap himself. He's the one that made the g—d—stupid mistake. Get to him. Find out how much more he wants, for chrissake. I've got to be kept out of this."

"You will, Lyndon," said McCormack. "You will."

In the last weeks we have heard a lot of shocked comment on the "politicization of the FBI." But listen to Winter-Berger on Johnson's technique as Majority Leader, a post in which he is generally conceded to have possessed historical greatness:

"He had an uncanny ability to garner votes at crucial times. ... This ability was not based so much on his persuasiveness as it was on his voluminous personal files, which kept track of the intimate, private indiscretions of his colleagues in the Senate. ... During this period, Johnson enjoyed a close personal relationship with FBI head J. Edgar Hoover. It was Hoover who kept Johnson's 'intelligence' files up to date by constantly supplying Johnson with new and titillating information on the foibles of famous Americans." To be sure, this is hardly correct behavior, but it is surely known to insiders.

The silver-haired patriarch, Speaker John McCormack, according to Winter-Berger, who was his P-R man, rented space in his office to the influence peddler, Nathan Voloshen, for $2,500 a month. "Every time I entered Speaker McCormack's offices... I felt that I was walking into a bookie joint. ... If somebody had shouted 'They're off!' I would have reached instantly for my binoculars."

"Succeeding Rayburn in 1962, John McCormack ran his office as if he were the Godfather and men like Eugene Kinna, Martin Sweig, Nathan Voloshen, John Donato, and Eddie Adams were his henchmen. ... Sweig, Voloshen, and Adams all were subsequently indicted for criminal conduct. ... To be ignorant of what was going on around him, McCormack would also have had to be deaf, dumb, and blind. Actually, if ever a man knew precisely what was going on around him, it was John McCormack."

To recognize the existence of such illegalities and improprieties is not at all cynical and I am not celebrating them. The world is the way it is, and I doubt that Washington today is more venal or power-mad than it was in 1900 or 1800. The republic has survived it all. Only an infinitesimal fraction of the crooks has landed in jail. And some of the crooks have also been statesmen and done great things.

As a matter of fact, I think the public instinctively knows all this, which is why it remains relatively calm over Watergate. But the public also seems to demand that press commentary take a much higher line and proceed as if in ignorance of history and human nature.

Pennsylvania Set To Monitor Vehicle Noise

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — State troopers in Pennsylvania will begin monitoring vehicles for noise levels—and issuing traffic tickets accordingly.

A Transportation Department spokesman said trooper cruisers parked alongside the highway with a special monitoring device attached will become familiar sights within a few months because of a new state law against vehicle noise pollution.

"Now we have specific noise limits which can be easily measured by one policeman using a sound meter," he said. "An old law required the testimony of two officers in order to obtain a conviction for excessive noise, a law which was almost impossible to enforce."

Freak Columbus Twister Causes Over $2 Million Loss

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A tornado that the National Weather Service described as a "freak" swept across Port Columbus International Airport Wednesday, causing damage

Peking's Face Changing, Chinese Say

TOKYO (AP) — The face of ancient Peking is changing, reports the official Hsinhua news agency.

New hotels, road overpasses, housing units and industrial projects are going up in a fever of activity unmatched for 10 years, Hsinhua says.

One of the most visible of the new projects will be a 20-story addition to the famed Peking Hotel, where many foreign visitors stay. Its foundations have been laid.

The first addition air travelers will see is a modern terminal for Peking airport to supplement the present cavernous, glass-front building. It will have a restaurant, shops, a banking office and a small hotel.

More housing blocks are rising in the embassy area following completion last year of a new international club, a "friendship" store catering to foreigners and two apartment houses for diplomats.

Among the new industrial projects are a plant for the manufacture of equipment for electrical power stations. Pillars weighing 48 tons each have been hoisted into place for this complex.

The building boom has Peking's chief concrete plant humming. It is filling orders for more than 30,000 lightweight, high-intensity slabs of prestressed concrete.

Grand Jury Ignores Turk Case

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Cuyahoga County Grand Jury has refused to indict former Cleveland City Council President Edmund J. Turk for destruction of initiative petitions.

County Prosecutor John T. Corrigan said the issue probably will be dropped.

The county Board of Elections had given Corrigan the results of a hearing into the matter after Turk admitted tearing up several petitions. But Turk said the petitions he destroyed had been illegally circulated by city employees.

State law prohibits the destruction of "lawfully circulated" petitions.

Turk since has been appointed chairman of the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio, although the Senate has declined to confirm the appointment until the petition charges were resolved.

The board also turned over its hearing transcript to the U.S. attorney's office, but federal officials so far have taken no action.

Grand Jury Foreman Edward F. Rybka said he "saw no reason for the indictment whatsoever. This is a dead issue as far as we're concerned," he said. "We listened to testimony of both parties—and we don't see anything wrong."

Both Republicans and Democrats have accused each other of pursuing party interests in the dispute.

estimated at more than $2 million to a nearby aircraft factory and government warehouses.

Police said no one was seriously injured.

One warehouse at the Defense Construction Supply Center was severely damaged and two others received minor damage, according to a supply center spokesman. Damage was estimated at more than $1 million.

About 40 cars in the supply center's parking lot were also damaged.

A section of roof was blown off a Rockwell International building adjoining the airport. Damage was also estimated at more than $1 million there.

An American Airlines building was also damaged, and an Allegheny Air Lines jet parked at the airport was moved about 200 yards.

Dave Bell of the weather service at Port Columbus said he was first aware of the tornado when he spotted it at 2:55 p.m. southwest of the terminal.

"No tornado watch or warning was issued before the tornado because we did not anticipate it," Bell said. "There was no indication on radar of tornadoes."

"It was a freak of nature. When it's that close the radar wouldn't pick it up."

An official at Rockwell said the twister struck the section of the plant not presently being used. As a result no employees were in the area and no one was seriously injured.

The official said nearly 50,000 square feet of roofing in the plant will have to be replaced.

Plastics Firms Accused By FTC On Flammability

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission Wednesday accused 26 chemical firms of knowingly advertising and selling combustible plastics as nonburning or self-extinguishing.

The class action complaint also named a trade association and a testing firm as defendants.

The plastics involved are the cellular, or foamed, polyurethane and all forms of polystyrene and its copolymers. More than one billion pounds of these plastics were marketed in 1972 for use in construction and home furnishings.

The plastics are used for insulation, furniture cushioning and bedding, panels and siding, cabinets, chairs, tables, pipes and lighting and plumbing fixtures.

They also are used in commercial airliners and in the trouble-plagued Skylab space station.

The FTC alleged the plastics spread flame more rapidly and increase the likelihood of flashover—when a fire in one part of a room suddenly engulfs the entire room or structure—generate extreme heat and produce amounts of toxic smoke.

U.S. Steps Up Drive On Aliens

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Federal immigration agents are stepping up a drive against Mexicans entering the United States illegally.

More than 2,000 illegal aliens — most of them from Latin America — have been arrested in a series of raids, the largest in California in three years, and officials said the mass crackdown will continue indefinitely.

Donald T. Williams, acting director of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, said the raids were ordered because routine investigative efforts have been unable to cope with the growing number of aliens.

Estimates of how many illegal aliens from Mexico are in the United States vary, but most authorities agree there are more than one million, with more than 250,000 in Southern California. Texas also has a large number.

Aliens ineligible for permanent residency are returned to Mexico. But the deportation is sometimes short-lived.

State To Pay Back Wages

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A spokesman for Gov. John Gilligan said Wednesday the state probably will pay 65,000 state and university employees salary raises denied them in 1972 by the Federal Pay Board.

Ohio's 10th District Court of Appeals Tuesday ordered the state to pay the raises.

"I would think, barring some action by a higher court, we'd go ahead and pay it," said Robert Tenenbaum, Gilligan's press secretary.

"I can't imagine that we'd appeal the decision," Tenenbaum said. "We were defendants in the case but the administration has been for making the pay raise retroactive all along."

Tenenbaum said money for the raises has been encumbered and is available to pay the raises.

Herschel Sigall, executive director of the State Employees Union, estimated the amount would range between $7 million and $10 million.

Sigall said it was "the first decision of its kind" that reversed a pay board decision.

Sigall said the amount of back pay will range from $160 to more than $200 per person.

The governor and State Auditor Joseph Ferguson were named defendants in the suit filed by the State Employees Union in February, 1972.

Sigall said Gilligan and the 109th General Assembly approved the raises, which were to take effect in December, 1971.

The Federal Pay Board rejected the pay increases in February, but later permitted them to take effect in March, 1972.

"The legislative intent was clear and the law of state sovereignty required that the money be paid," Sigall said. Judge Dean Strausbaugh wrote the opinion and received the concurrence of two other judges.

"The border is like a revolving door, and I know some illegal aliens who, after being deported, returned to Los Angeles faster than the bus that drove them down," recalled one man who was caught after 10 years and qualified for residency.

"We can't keep them from coming in," Williams asserted. "Last year there were 27 million border crossings at Tijuana, and if you question people, others have to wait. The complaints flood in, and there is constant pressure for less enforcement."

What harm do the aliens do?

"They attend schools at taxpayers' expense, they take jobs that normally would go to Americans, and many of them go on welfare and use other public social services," Williams said.

Melvin Sherman, director of the International Institute, a Los Angeles-based agency that has been helping aliens for 60 years, disagreed.

"Immigrants—legal and illegal—come here to work," Sherman said. "And it is a myth that they take jobs away from Americans."

"This country has always relied on an underclass to do undesirable jobs. Now, with such liberal welfare benefits, our underclass Americans don't want to be field hands, maids or janitors," Sherman added.

"But if you come from a country where $1.50 is a fortune, you don't mind those jobs, and that's where the illegal aliens fulfill a vital function here."

Nevertheless, California's Social Welfare Board has termed the presence of illegal aliens from Mexico a major problem.

In the raids in May, immigration officers were aided by a "sizable force" of U.S. Border Patrol agents brought here from other parts of the country.

But Williams has said manpower is not the solution.

"If we had more officers, we would just arrest more people, and there wouldn't be enough jails and courts to handle them," he said.

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD EVERETT HENN

Miss Deborah Sue Wilson, Richard Everett Henn Are Wed

Vases of yellow and white daisies and green foliage decorated the altar of Community United Methodist Church for the wedding of Miss Deborah Sue Wilson and Mr. Richard Everett Henn.

The Rev. David Frazer performed the double ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Wilson, 255 Edwards Road and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Henn, 249 Nicholas Drive, 4:30 p.m. May 12th.

A program of music preceding the ceremony was presented by Miss Brenda Southward, organist and Mr. Roger Allen, soloist. Selections included "One Love," "The Lord's Prayer," "Wedding Song" and "Love Story."

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was escorted to the altar by her father. She selected for her wedding day a formal length gown of white dotted Swiss fashioned with an empire waistline and bishop sleeves. The front of the gown and edge of the chapel train was trimmed with mint green ribbon in pull-through lace. Her bridal illusion veil, falling to the length of the train, was caught to a half-bonnet of material, ribbon and lace matching her gown.

The bride carried a colonial bouquet of white and yellow daisies, yellow sweetheart roses and baby's breath with white satin streamers. Inserted in the bouquet was a piece of artificial orange blossom that the bride's maternal grandmother and mother carried in their wedding bouquets. Her only jewelry was a locket her father gave to her mother on their wedding day.

Maid of honor was Miss Jan Bingman in a mint green dotted Swiss gown. Lace trimmed the empire waistline and short puffed sleeves topping the floor length skirt. Mrs. Cora Fullen and Miss Ruth Ann Henn, sisters of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. They were dressed as the honor attendant in yellow dotted Swiss.

The attendants wore bows of material matching their gowns as headpieces and carried colonial bouquets of baby's breath, yellow and white daisies, miniature carnations and cornflowers with yellow streamers.

Flower girl was Beverly Smith attired as the maid of honor in mint green.

Mr. John Neuding was best man with Mr. Jeff Spalding, Mr. Mike Wilson, brother of the bride, and Mr. Jack Zoldak as ushers.

The bride's mother wore a mint green street length dress with matching jacket and accessories. The bridegroom's mother was attired in a beige jacket dress with matching accessories. Flowers for the mothers were corsages of sweetheart roses, miniature carnations, daisies and corn flowers.

A reception in the social rooms of the church immediately followed the ceremony. Hostesses were Miss Marilyn Bingman, Miss Kathy Wilson and Mrs. Michael D. Wilson, sister-in-law of the bride. Miss Brenda O'Dell presided at the guest register.

For a wedding trip to Cincinnati, the bride changed to an orange crimplene street length dress with white accessories. The couple now resides at 1700 Jennifer Road, Apt. 13, Lexington, Ky.

The new Mrs. Henn is a graduate of Circleville High School and Ohio State School of Cosmetology.

Mr. Henn, also a graduate of Circleville High School, is a graduate of United Electronics Institute of Akron, Ohio. He is currently employed by the Lexington Blue Grass Army Depot.

Honored guests at the wedding were Miss Sheila Lewis of England and Mrs. Irene Haigh of Gatlinburg, Tenn., an aunt of the bride. Other guests were from Columbus, Tarlton, Stoutsville, Jackson, Athens and Cincinnati, Ohio; Canada, Indiana, Illinois, and Kentucky.

A dinner for the wedding party, hosted by the bridegroom's parents, was held at Wardell's Party Home following rehearsal the evening before the wedding.

'Rehabilitation' Is Program For Registered Nurses Assn.

The May meeting of Pickaway County Registered Nurses Assn. was held at Pickaway Manor with Mrs. Allen Berger, physiotherapist, guest speaker. Mrs. Berger's topic was "Rehabilitation" with special reference to the recently developed training programs for the coronary patient.

Rehabilitation is the physical, mental and emotional adjustment of a permanently disabled person to carry on as nearly as possible normal life activities, and therefore these training programs require careful evaluation of the patient's capabilities, whatever the reason for his disability.

For the coronary patient this evaluation is made by a team including cardiologist, social worker, vocational counselor, nutritionist, EKG technician and a psychiatrist and includes a complete history and physical examination, diet interview, bicycle stress test, social and vocational interviews, cardiac fluoroscopy and chest plate and various laboratory tests.

Results of these evaluations, with appropriate recommendations, are returned to the attending physician. The rehabilitation program is designed to include lifetime follow-up as indicated.

Mrs. Berger briefly discussed the principles and procedures for coronary rehabilitation programs in hospitals in surrounding areas of the state. However, the more typical rehabilitation program for the cardiac patient is nothing definite, many physicians still do not regard exercise as a form of treatment.

Brief discussions were held concerning training programs in other areas of rehabilitation, such as paraplegia and multiple sclerosis.

Following the program, a brief business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. Arthur Bowman. Committee chairmen were reminded the annual reports are due and the auditing committee submitted its report.

Chairman of the nominating committee, Mrs. Jerrell Anderson, read the proposed slate of officers for the coming year. Elected to office were: Mrs. David Smith, president; Mrs. Ted Reichelderfer, vice president; Mrs. Virgil Anderson, recording secretary; Mrs. Sterlin Mullins, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Orville Hukill, treasurer; and Mrs. R. G. Smith, member-at-large.

Mrs. Bowman thanked her officers and committees for their cooperation and support during the past two years and extended her congratulations to the newly elected officers.

The June meeting will be a picnic at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Robinson, 103 Reber Ave. Assisting will be Mr. and Mrs. Charles Walters, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur K. Bowman. Husbands or escorts will be guests and members are asked to bring table service.

U.S. To Oppose Ohio Pay Order

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An official of the U.S. Justice Department's Economic Stabilization Section said Wednesday the federal government intends to litigate an Ohio court decision granting back pay raises to state employees.

Tuesday Ohio's 10th District Court of Appeals ruled that the state must pay employees salary hikes which were denied by the Federal Pay Board during the first two and a half months of 1972.

Stanley D. Rose, deputy chief of the Economic Stabilization Section, said the retroactive payments would violate the Economic Stabilization Act of 1970.

The appeals court ruling was a surprise to federal attorneys since "as far as we're concerned the case is already in federal court," Rose added. A petition to transfer the case to U.S. District Court here was filed by the U.S. attorney on April 19. Rose said the Justice Department believed that automatically transferred jurisdiction.

The suit for the retroactive pay raises was filed by the State Employees Union shortly after the Federal Pay Board ruled that the raise voted by the legislature could take effect in March, 1972, but not Jan. 1, as the legislature provided.

The state court ruled on the case saying the issue was "whether state officials can refuse to obey state law." The court referred to the legislation granting the pay raise.

Meanwhile, Gov. John Gilligan's administration indicated it would not appeal the ruling.

"We were defendants in the case, but the administration has been for making the pay raise retroactive all along," said Robert Tenenbaum, the governor's press secretary.

The back pay totals an estimated $8.3 million, and Tenenbaum said money for the raise has been encumbered and is available to pay them.

State Personnel Director Joseph Sommer said he has asked the attorney general's office to analyze the

Oil Company Faces Suit Over Cutback

ASHLAND, Ky. (AP) — An Ashland service station operator says the only way independent dealers "have a chance is to go to court" to seek reversal of major oil company supply cutbacks.

C.C. Hayes is suing the Standard Oil Co. of Kentucky and its parent firm Standard Oil of California for recent reductions in his gasoline allotments, and Wednesday urged other dealers like him to turn to the courts for help.

Hayes filed suit against Standard Oil earlier this month in Boyd County Circuit Court at Catlettsburg. His suit contends a planned 45,000-gallon cutback would put him out of business.

"The only way independents have a chance is to go to court, Hayes said. "I'd have been out of business 20 days ago if I hadn't sued."

Standard Oil is seeking to take the action out of circuit court and into federal jurisdiction, but Hayes' attorney Kelley Asbury has filed a motion against the move with the circuit court.

Asbury said the suit was filed under Kentucky law and involves no federal question. "It is a question of unfair trade practices," he said.

Standard Oil has reduced gasoline supplies to its Sohio service stations in Ohio and Boron stations in neighboring states.

was 77 per cent planted by last weekend, compared with 56 per cent on May 22. Last year at this time about 81 per cent of the corn planting was done in the Corn Belt.

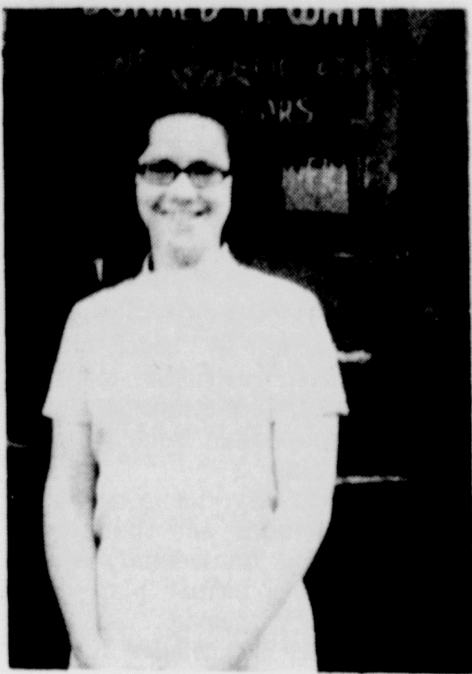

"Iowa farmers got in six days of corn planting last week, pushing completion to 83 per cent, compared to 96 per cent last year," the department said in a weekly weather report.

"Nearly 25 per cent of Iowa corn has emerged. Illinois corn acreage is 80 per cent planted while Nebraska is 95 per cent complete and Minnesota 91 per cent," the report said. "Corn planting advanced to 70 per cent in Indiana, 55 per cent in Ohio and Wisconsin, 87 per cent in South Dakota, and 54 per cent in Missouri."

Elsewhere, the report said, the 1973 corn crop was 85 per cent planted in the south Atlantic and south central areas, about the same as for May 27 last year.

Cotton planting advanced also, to 78 per cent completed as of May 27, compared with about 85 per cent a year earlier.

Soybeans, which can be planted later than corn, were reported behind normal because farmers were concentrating on corn fields, the department said. By May 27, about one-third of the north central region's crop had been planted, compared with 54 per cent normally.

Congressman's Land Involved In Kelleys Island Expansion

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Department of Natural Resources wants to extend Kelleys Island State Park on Lake Erie and one of the property owners it must negotiate with is a Cleveland area Congressman.

U.S. Rep. William Minshall, R-Lakewood, owns one tract of land the state wants to acquire.

Marvin Katz, a department spokesman said the 91.7-acre property it wants from Minshall is appraised at $47,200.

"The total Minshall property includes three houses, one of which he lives in and the other two he rents out," Katz said. "The land we want to acquire contains one of the rental houses, I believe a one-story frame house."

The congressman has not responded to a state letter informing him of the appraisal price and the plans the state has for the property.

Katz said the department has also contacted other property owners on the tiny island about acquisition of land. He declined to elaborate on negotiations.

"I am trying to be as open as I can without jeopardizing other negotiations," Katz said. "If it weren't for the involvement of a congressman and the fact that it came up in a committee, I would say, sorry, baby—no information."

Last week members of the Ohio Senate reviewing the department's budget proposals for the new biennium pressed for the appraisal figure on the Minshall property and were told.

Kelleys Island State Park now includes 594 acres. Katz said the rule of thumb for state parks is at least a couple of thousand acres.

"However, we are not proposing that much for Kelleys Island. We have in mind acquiring about 400 additional acres to provide boat docking facilities and cabins," Katz said.

McGough Speaks

Against Media

Attacks On Nixon

MARION, Ohio (AP)—Kent McGough, state Republican chairman, Wednesday said "what might be a vendetta" against the President should be tried in the courts and not in the media.

McGough, speaking at $25-a-plate fund-raising luncheon, added that party members should keep faith in President Nixon until all facts are brought to light.

"The main issue of the 1974 gubernatorial race will be the Gov. John J. Gilligan administration and its conduct in office," McGough said. "The Gilligan record leaves a lot to be desired."

McGough didn't specify details but said he thought "the Gilligan scandals" would eventually overshadow the Statehouse loan scandals of 1970.

Shell Of New Barn

At State Fairgrounds

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Expositions Commission Wednesday said construction of the shell of a new barn at the fairgrounds is expected to be ready in time for this summer's state fair.

The barn replaces a structure that was destroyed by fire last October.

Exterior work is expected to be completed after the fair according to the commission.

'Miners For Democracy' Fades

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Miners for Democracy, the reform movement that ousted the United Mine Workers union regime of W. A. "Tony" Boyle, must be phased out and forgotten, its organizers say.

"The MFD was a good, viable force for what it was intended. It got what we wanted: the right to elect our people. But we are United Mine Workers and not Miners for Democracy," said Jack Perry, newly elected president of the union's District 17 here.

MFD was formed after the 1969 murder of Joseph "Jock" Yablonski, who was killed a short time after he lost a bid to unseat Boyle as union president.

The movement eventually won new court-ordered elections, and last December Arnold Miller and his MFD slate won control of the 200,000-member union.

MFD also came to symbolize other intraunion fights against the Boyle leadership, which went to power in the 1960s with the blessing of the late John L. Lewis. Among them were demands that Boyle quit appointing local leaders in the UMW's districts and allow miners to elect them.

Now, even as miners under MFD banners win the first elections in decades for most districts, MFD leaders say it is time to think of the UMW first. Some observers view it as an effort to achieve a united front for contract negotiations in 1974.

Currently, about half the union's members belong to MFD controlled districts. Officials say the distinction should not be emphasized.

"We don't care whether he's a Miller man or a Boyle man, as long as he's a coal miner," said Lawrence Hays, a monitor in Indiana. "That's all behind us now. We're all United Mine Workers."

A union official conceded, however, that the union is not united.

"Some of the wounds will stay fresh just because there are some divisions," he said.

Some 4,000 miners went on strike several weeks before the elections in what they termed a protest of Miller's interference in district affairs.

"We've got to forget the past," the official said. "Remember, we're going to have a tough battle with the coal operators when the 1974 contract comes up. We're still union men."

Brazil Plans Arms Buy

BRASILIA (AP) — Brazil's air force has decided to buy $100 million worth of American jet fighters, military sources say.

The deal would give the United States a major victory in its arms sales competition with France in Latin America.

The air force is recommending the purchase of 48 Northrop F5Es, which it chose over McDonnell Douglas' F4 Phantoms, France's Mirage 5 and Italy's Fiat 6914, the sources said.

The deal is awaiting the approval of President Emilio Garrastazu Medici and the finance ministry. The sources said the government wants the use locally of Northrop technical advice as part of the purchase agreement and details of financing must be worked out also.

The order is approximately double Brazil's two most recent orders for arms from France. In 1970, the government bought 16 Mirage 3s at $3 million each, and recently it agreed to buy $2 million worth of missiles from the French.

Gas Ration

Plan Nixed

On Turnpike

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Texaco, Inc., was barred by court order Wednesday from restricting its fuel sales along the Ohio Turnpike, a move the firm's spokesman said it was taking nationwide.

James Shocknessy, turnpike commission chairman, set the legal machinery going immediately after hearing Texaco's formal plan and rejecting it. A hearing on the restraining order is scheduled June 7.

Texaco's Cleveland district sales manager, David Wheeland, told Shocknessy the limit would be 10 gallons per customer in gasoline sales and 35 gallons of diesel fuel per commercial customer.

The diesel maximum, Wheeland said, would be reduced to 25 gallons "where the supply situation dictates."

Wheeland also said Texaco was applying the restrictions "on all such toll roads that it serves throughout the country," effective Wednesday.

The firm operates four of the turnpike's 16 service stations on a lease-franchise contract granted by the commission after taking bids.

Order Mental Tests

For Cincinnati Man

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP)—George Phillip Rickey, 22, of Cincinnati has been sent to Lima State Hospital for psychiatric examination.

Rickey was convicted in Butler County Common Pleas Court of forcing his way into the home of a Butler County housewife March 9 and assaulting her.

Pesticides

Under Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two pesticides used on corn and other grains have been attacked as cancer-causing agents by the Environmental Protection Agency.

However, in an exchange of arguments filed Tuesday, Shell Chemical Co., defended its products and said EPA threw "everything but the kitchen sink" into its allegations.

Subject of the debate are the pesticides aldrin and dieldrin, used primarily on corn, but also sometimes applied to rice and other crop seeds, fruits, vegetables and field crops, citrus fruit, nursery products, tobacco and sometimes in the home.

Shell asserted that there was no evidence of a cancer threat from the two chemicals, and added that EPA has not disclosed whatever evidence it has that they may pose other health dangers.

Shell acted in appealing an order issued June 26, 1972, by former EPA administrator William D. Ruckelshaus cancelling most federally approved uses of aldrin and dieldrin. Shell's action allows continued sale of the products until the appeal is resolved.

Keep America beautiful, but keep America alive!

Some of America's most beautiful resort areas lie along the Atlantic Coast. And no one wants to mar their beauty. It's much too valuable a natural resource.

But, there's another tremendously valuable natural resource over the horizon along the Atlantic Coast. Energy that is desperately needed to help ease our nation's worsening energy crisis.

We must not sacrifice one resource for the other.

And we needn't. Modern techniques for under-water drilling and delivery of fuel have eliminated the danger of permanent environmental damage. An offshore drilling rig won't even be seen from the shore.

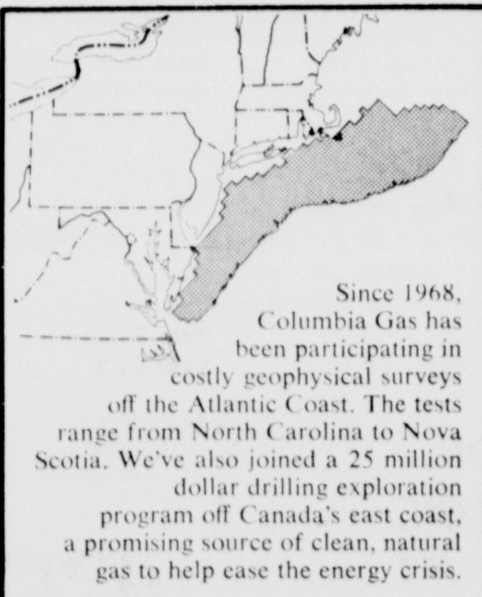

And offshore production will reduce the need for increased tanker traffic.

Developing domestic sources of energy is essential to the security of our nation.

If our own sources of energy lie idle, America becomes dependent on expensive and insecure foreign sources, and sends more of our dollars overseas.

The Atlantic Coast areas depend on a prosperous America.

And a prosperous America depends on energy.

Since 1968, Columbia Gas has been participating in costly geophysical surveys off the Atlantic Coast. The tests range from North Carolina to Nova Scotia. We've also joined a 25 million dollar drilling exploration program off Canada's east coast, a promising source of clean, natural gas to help ease the energy crisis.

COLUMBIAGAS
Gas is precious, pure energy... use it wisely.

Sneek-A-Peek

AT BOOKS IN THE CHILDREN'S LIBRARY

Are there really more problems in the world today, or are the problems simply of another nature—modern problems in place of old-fashioned problems? Adolescents today are faced with a variety of modern social problems, such as drugs and war, about which they must make a decision. Parents must therefore prepare themselves to guide their children in these areas. No parent can expect to have a successful discussion with his child about a problem such as drug abuse unless he is well-informed. Without some preparation, the parent will probably succeed only in proving his lack of knowledge.

We have quite a few new books in the Sneek-a-Peek room which deal with modern-day problems and frustrations. They are written by noted authors of children's books who have researched the true facts to children. What better guide could a parent use? "The Ups and Downs of Drugs" by Kathleen Elgin and John F. Osteritter explains the facts and dangers of barbiturates, amphetamines, hallucinogens, narcotics, and stimulants. With the descriptions presented of the medical and emotional problems that these drugs can produce and the description of withdrawal symptoms, no child would want to risk trying them.

"Children of Vietnam" by Betty Jean Lifton is an honest comment about the unfortunate effects of war upon children. If we are going to be truthful about the subject of war, let's look at it from all standpoints, and consider all its various effects. This book does just that.

"100 Hamburgers—The Getting Thin Book" was written for the child whose problem is his weight. This book takes a humorous, yet sympathetic approach to this problem and shows the child how to attack it. Children's problems are sometimes more easily solved if they realize that other children have the same problems, and that you can approach these problems with a good attitude. This book was written by Mary Lynn Solot, and illustrated by Paul Galdone.

If your child is concerned about his emotions, perhaps he needs to realize that all children his age have those same emotions, and that they are perfectly normal. He also needs to be guided in handling his emotions. He needs to be shown how to cope with anger and fear in a constructive, rather than a destructive, way. This is not an easy concept to teach a child, particularly when the parent has not yet learned to cope with his emotional problems. "Happy, Sad, Silly, Mad—a beginning book about emotions" by Barbara Shook Hazen is written to help the child emotionally. Here is a free lesson in child psychology! The pictures in this book are by Elizabeth Dauber.

These books are written to be guidelines for both parents and children. The well-informed parent must use guidelines such as these to keep up with his child and the new problems of everyday life.

Turnout Good For Irish Elections

By COLIN FROST
Associated Press Writer
The results of Ireland's two elections were expected today amid predictions of a sizeable 50 per cent turnout in Northern Ireland's balloting for local officials.

There was no more violence than usual despite threats by extremists to sabotage the voting on Wednesday. South of the border in the Irish Republic, the turnout for the election of a new president to succeed Eamon DeValera was the lowest in 40 years. "The ballot box has beaten the bully boys," said one politician in Northern

Twister Hits Oklahoma Rural Area

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Violent thunderstorms lashed the southern Plains early today, sending a deadly twister through a rural area southeast of Oklahoma City.

One man was killed and four other persons were injured near Lexington, Okla., when the tornado destroyed four mobile homes on a farm.

One woman said she was awakened by the storm and "It was just like everybody said. The front wall started coming forward and everything started coming toward me."

"The next thing we knew we were sitting out there in the yard," she said. Most of the nation had mild temperatures under cloudy skies. Showers and thunderstorms were scattered over the Northeast and mountainous West.

Severe thunderstorms punched the Florida peninsula Wednesday, but they were not far enough south to help extinguish fires burning out of control near the Everglades National Park and Big Cypress Swamp. By midnight the rains had moved offshore.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 38 at Laramie, Wyo., to 88 at Needles, Calif.

Grandchildren Of Tarlton Woman Take Band Tour

Mark Hedges, 16, and Kellie Hedges, 14, the children of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Hedges, Pompano Beach, Fla., recently were part of a 5-day concert tour to Mexico taken by the 117-piece Deerfield Beach High School marching band.

Mrs. Clyde Hedges, Tarlton, is the paternal grandmother of the two students. Their father is a graduate of Saltcreek High School and is employed by Southern Bell Telephone Co.

The band was invited for an appearance at the Conservatory of Music in Mexico City, Mexico. Members of the band raised $16,000 toward the trip and in addition each had to pay an additional $35.

Mark will be a senior next year. A French horn player, he has played in many college music contests and has been judged superior in every solo he has played.

Kellie plays the oboe. She will be a sophomore. Their mother accompanied the band on the tour as a chaperone. Director of the band is Fred Humphreys.

Ireland after the province's first election since the start of armed strife between its Roman Catholic and Protestant communities nearly four years ago.

The voting was for 526 members of 26 district councils. At least 50 per cent of those eligible were estimated to have voted, with the estimate running as

Senate Panel Supports Delta Queen

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The famous inland paddlewheeler Delta Queen will get a five-year reprieve from federal safety legislation if the will of an Ohio Senate committee prevails.

The Senate Commerce and Labor Committee gave its unanimous endorsement Wednesday night to a resolution asking Congress to continue the exemption owners of the vessel have had for six years from the federal Safety at Sea Act.

Sen. Stanley J. Aronoff, R-8 Cincinnati, said the resolution would be forwarded to Sens. Robert Taft and William B. Saxbe, both R-Ohio, to give impetus to a U.S. Senate bill that would allow the Delta Queen to operate for five more years.

William Muster, president of Greene Line Steamers, Inc., Cincinnati, owners of the Delta Queen, said the company already has started construction on a new $15½ million steamboat which will meet the allsteel construction standards established by the Safety at Sea Act.

The Delta Queen's superstructure is mostly wood, but has been fireproofed. Other safety measures have also been taken on the boat since the federal law was passed.

Muster said the new paddlewheel steamboat will be ready for the nation's inland waterways in 1976—the Delta Queen's 50th anniversary and the 200th birthday of the United States.

But he said "the Delta Queen should be permitted to continue to operate" after the new one is finished. The new passenger vessel is the first to be built in the nation in the past 20 years, Muster said.

Also appearing before the committee was Betty Blake, vice president and general manager of Greene Line Steamers.

high as 70 per cent in Londonderry. Since 25 per cent is a usual turnout for local elections, officials were heartened by the voters' response.

The Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army viewed the balloting as a British ploy to blunt the IRA of offensive and warned: "Those who vote will be traitors — and they will be seen as traitors."

About 16 per cent of the million voters cast their ballots in advance by mail rather than risk being spotted at the booths.

Apathy appeared to be the major feature of the presidential election in the Irish Republic.

About 55 per cent of the electorate turned out to select a successor to the 91-year-old DeValera, retiring after two terms as the republic's figurehead president and nearly half a century as a commanding figure in Irish politics.

A presidential election would normally be expected to draw a much larger response from the two million voters in the South.

Their choice was between Tom O'Higgins, the candidate of the Fine Gael-Labor coalition that won control of the government by a narrow margin in the March parliamentary election, and Erskine Childers of DeValera's Fianna Fail party, which had been in power for the past 16 years.

Before the election, O'Higgins was considered a slight favorite, but the small turnout put that in doubt.

Bulk Buyers Hurt By Fuel Shortage

By BOB MONROE
Associated Press Writer

The fuel shortage has ended bidding battles by major oil companies for bulk contracts, and some states and cities around the country are having difficulty getting supplies, even at higher prices.

Urban transit authorities also are feeling the crunch. About 30 have received notices of fuel curtailment, and at least two face the threat of having to cut back service.

Bulk buyers traditionally have purchased surplus fuel the major companies had left after supplying their stations. They got annual contracts and bargain prices.

Now the shortage has created a seller's market. The companies say they don't want to bid because they don't have the supply to meet the overall demand. Observers note they also make more money on their retail trade.

New Jersey invited 24 firms to bid on a bulk gas contract and got one response. Frank M. Papale Jr., director of the state's Division of Purchase and Property, said the bill will be $384,000 more than last year.

Dallas County in Texas will pay 50 per cent more for fuel under its new contract and Los Angeles County, 67 per cent.

Linwood F. Ross, state purchasing agent for Maine, feels "we were lucky to get even one bid" on a new fuel contract. The price per gallon jumped

Union Lifts Trusteeship Over Locals

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees Tuesday lifted trusteeship over seven local unions affiliated with Ohio State Employees Council 21.

The trusteeship was imposed over more than 40 local unions after Herschel Sigall, executive director of Council 21, announced plans for union disaffiliation.

Sigall announced last week the 12,000-member council was leaving the parent union to join forces with the Ohio Civil Service Employees Association in an organization to be called the Ohio Government Employees Labor Alliance.

Following that announcement, AFSCME international president Jerry Wurf imposed trusteeship; named William Van Zandt, of Detroit, council trustee, and ordered all bank accounts frozen.

Sigall and Van Zandt answered charges about the disaffiliation in separate news conferences Tuesday.

Van Zandt said messages of support for AFSCME have been received and recommendations on other local trusteeship removals will be announced.

"Council 21's rump leadership was on the verge of making deals that would have stripped more than 9,000 state and university employees of their recognized, legitimate status," Van Zandt said, "thereby jeopardizing all of the gains they have been able to make as part of the 600,000-member union."

Sigall denied Van Zandt's charge that more than 4,000 cards signed by members to end authorization for dues deduction to AFSCME will be disavowed.

"The cards can't be disavowed," Sigall said, "no one is being duped on our side."

Sigall also denied Van Zandt's charge that the OGELA will be only a "paper organization."

six cents and will cost the state an additional $500,000.

The American Transit Association surveyed 90 city transit companies and found one-third reported that they had received fuel curtailment notices. But it noted most had not had to reduce services yet.

The Metropolitan Transit Commission in Minneapolis needs about six million gallons of fuel annually for the 720 buses it operates in a seven-county area. It accepted its only bid—for 3.8 million gallons at 14.9 cents, compared with 11.88 last year.

"We'll have to go out and try to hustle the rest," said executive director Camille Andres. Unless more fuel is made available, he said, the prospect now is for curtailment of routes.

"The industry simply is not soliciting this kind of (bulk) business," notes Jack Rehberg, director of the Montana Petroleum Association. Would-be buyers will have to compete in the market place for fuel just like everybody else, he said.

Conrad Talk In Secret Draws Fire

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Skylab 1 commander Charles Conrad Jr. has had a private radio talk with his bosses. But the space agency apologized and said it won't happen again unless an astronaut is sick, in serious trouble or feeling homesick.

Conrad, in a move unprecedented in the American civilian space program, asked for and received permission on Tuesday for a private conversation on operational matters with top Johnson Space Center officials.

Mission control granted the request swiftly, since the Skylab rules permitted such an arrangement only in the event of illness, "an extreme emergency" or for a morale-boosting chat with an astronaut's family.

But the conversation, according to a statement released later, was little more than a man-to-man chat about life aboard the world's largest, slightly troubled space station.

John P. Donnelly, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration deputy administrator of public affairs, protested that the chat was improper and sought to head off a re-occurrence.

In contrast to many government agencies, NASA is required by its charter to conduct an open program.

Congress insisted upon this policy when the space agency was created. The announced intent of an open policy was to demonstrate that America could explore space without the secrecy that still shields the Russian program from international scrutiny.

Recreational Spending Zooms

By JIM DAUBEL
Written for The Associated Press

The growth of outdoor industries over the past decade has been nothing short of phenomenal, especially in the field of camping equipment and vehicles.

Recreational spending has jumped 27 per cent since 1967 compared with an increase in total personal expenditures of 12 per cent, the U.S. Department of Commerce reports.

But, while the great outdoors has lured many to invest substantial sums in family camping, not everybody has found the dividends rewarding.

Britain And Iceland Remain Antagonists In Fishing War

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Iceland and Britain have called the attention of the United Nations to their escalating cod war, but neither asked for any action by the Security Council.

In a letter to the Council on Tuesday, the British accused Iceland of aggression and violating the U.N. charter. It said an Icelandic gunboat's shelling of the British trawler Everton last Saturday was "the latest and gravest of a series" of hostile actions that have taken an "increasingly dangerous form."

British Charge d'Affaires Kenneth D. Jamieson visited Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to express his government's concern over the dispute stemming from Iceland's proclamation last September that its territorial waters extended 50 miles offshore.

Britain and West Germany refused to recognize the extension beyond the 12-mile limit because their trawlers have fished the disputed waters for generations. Recently, British navy ships moved inside the 50-mile limit to protect British trawlers defying Iceland's ban.

Also on Tuesday, Iceland's foreign minister, Einar Agustsson, wrote the Security Council asking it to "regard the presence of British warships in our fishing zone as a threat to peace." The letter said Iceland reserved the right to bring the dispute before the council later for "appropriate action."

Agustsson told newsmen in Reykjavik, Iceland's capital, that his government rejects suggestions that Secretary-General Joseph Luns of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization act as a peacemaker between Iceland and Britain, both NATO members.

The NATO council took up Iceland's demand at a meeting in Brussels on Tuesday but only appealed to the two countries to "exercise the utmost restraint" and to do all they could to negotiate a settlement.

At first glance camping appears to be the ideal way to travel cheaply. Not necessarily. It depends on initial cost and how often you camp.

The least expensive way to go is by tent. A family of four could buy a tent and all other equipment for about $300.

At the opposite cost extreme is the motor home which sells for up to $20,000 depending on size, model, options and manufacturer.

Neither is the perfect answer, nor is any single camping unit priced between the cheapest and costliest.

A tent is highly mobile but it leaves much to be desired in extremely bad weather. And a station wagon, car-top carrier or trailer is virtually a necessity to tote all the accessories that make tenting enjoyable for most families.

Even the super deluxe motor homes have drawbacks. Unless you carry auxiliary transportation, for example, a quick trip from the campground into town for a loaf of bread becomes a major undertaking.

A travel trailer, pickup camper or fold-out camper could be acceptable compromises but, there again, initial investment should be considered along with all the convenience factors.

Everybody's money, a publication of the Credit Union National Association, recently broke down camping costs. Everybody's Money pointed out that based on average motel costs, a family of four would have to use a $3,000 camper 28 days a year for six years for it to pay for itself.

All costs aside, however, mutual enjoyment is the fundamental purpose of family camping, and it is surprising how many people overlook that essential consideration.

The only way for first-time campers to learn if they like it is to get out and try; and the cheapest way to try is with rental equipment.

Not only does renting introduce you to camping without a major investment but the experience of several trips afield will be a profitable guide in choosing the type of gear to purchase later on.

Sen. Gray Lonely As Senate Chief

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — If being lonely is a key to leadership, Theodore M. Gray, Majority Leader of the Senate, is one of the best in state government.

His Republican troops hold only a one-vote edge in the Senate, there is a Democratic majority in the House and a Democrat in the governor's office.

It's a change for the 45-year-old Gray, who took over the Senate leadership — officially President pro tem — in 1965 and has held it since.

Never before has he had to work without direction or orders from the governor's office. And when he talks to Republican leaders in the House, he's getting only a minority viewpoint.

"It's obviously made the role of Senate leader a little different," Gray said, "especially in negotiations with the governor and the House majority."

Gray, in dealing with the House Republican leadership, said he always takes their view into consideration when trying to work out compromises with the administration.

The one-vote edge means Gilligan has to work with Gray, but not very hard. There is always the possibility two Republicans will see things the governor's way and give him the votes he needs.

On the other hand, Gray can stall and kill in Senate committees administration proposals. But the governor has an ace in the hole. He could veto Republican-oriented legislation.

The GOP, outnumbered in the House, 58-41, does not have the three-fifths majority also needed in the Senate to override a veto.

Gray describes Gilligan as "stand-offish" in their relationship. He said he infrequently goes to see the governor on pending legislation.

"He (Gilligan) looks at the broad picture," Gray said. "He deals in the philosophy of the thing. He doesn't get involved in the detail of carrying things out like (former Democratic Gov. Michael V.) DiSalle did."

Gray, who came to the Senate in 1950 at the age of 23, owns the Gray Insurance Agency in Piqua. He plans to get out of the agency. He has election problems to keep him busy.

Reapportionment masterminded by Gilligan shoved his Third District far to the west, taking in such areas as Hilliard and Upper Arlington in Franklin County, but letting him keep Champaign and a portion of Clark County. He also has all of Union.

Gray, who now lives in Columbus, must run for re-election next year in area where the majority of voters don't know him.

Gray contends he's a leader who tries to get "a consensus rather than go in gung-ho and say, 'This is the way we're going to do it.'"

Shooting for a consensus has backfired on him once this session. He thought he had worked out a compromise with Gilligan on confirming Henry W. Eckhart as chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, but his own caucus didn't buy it.

They turned on both Gilligan and Gray, took Eckhart's confirmation to a new term to the floor, voted it down and forced Eckhart off the state payroll.

A short, chunky man with a nervous laugh, Gray is usually evasive with reporters in talking about pending legislation. He often seems unsure of his troops while he's trying to get the consensus he desires.

Gray calls the process "moulding it together."

But Gray has found moulding togetherness with GOP dominance is one thing, doing it when the Democrats control the mould is another.

For one thing it's lonelier.

A Catholic Mason? It's Possible, But . . .

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are both Catholics. He wants to join the Masonic Order. I say the Masons will not take a Catholic. My husband says they will. If he is right and joins the Masons, I say if the Catholic church find out about it they will kick him out, and he won't be able to receive communion with his family, and when he dies they won't give him the last rites.

Something else that I never could understand: Why can't a Catholic be a Mason, too?

IN THE DARK

DEAR IN: The Masons WILL accept Catholics, but a Catholic who joins the Masons forfeits his right to receive the sacrament, and he will be canonically excommunicated from the Catholic church. (You can't "kick" a Catholic out of the church—he can attend church if he wants to, but he can't receive the sacraments.)

The Catholics view Masonry as a formal religion, and one cannot be a Catholic and a Mason for the same reason that one cannot be a Catholic and a Lutheran or a Catholic and a Mohammedan at the same time.

DEAR ABBY: I am now a grown man, but when I was a child my parents never forced me to eat anything I didn't like, and I never suffered from it. I now tend to follow that approach with my own children. I have divorced and remarried, and my present wife and I have my children from my previous marriage for many weekends and most of the summer.

We get along fine, except at mealtime. My wife feels that children should be made to eat food they don't like, on the theory that it is good for them, and they will grow to like it. The children have made an honest effort to try certain foods which don't appeal to them, but they simply don't like certain things. My wife tends to prepare at least one thing at every meal that the children don't like, and it is a constant hassle at mealtime.

We have agreed to let you arbitrate and will abide by your decision.

FATHER

DEAR FATHER: Angry arguments at mealtime are bad for the digestion. I vote for compromise. If the kids are too picky and don't like too many things, for nutrition's sake, bear down. But don't force food on them just to prove your wife's authority over them. That's not fair.

DEAR ABBY: I've been putting this off for so many years I am ashamed of myself, but now I must do something about it.

When I was very young I had an illegitimate daughter. When she was 2, I married a fine man, and we had three children of our own. All four children think my husband is their father.

My husband never legally adopted my first child. She just used his last name, and it has gone on like that ever since.

This first daughter is now 44 years old, and one day in order to get old age benefits she will have to have a birth certificate. I seem to recall that when she was an infant I destroyed it for fear she (or someone else) would find it.

I don't want her to know the circumstances of her birth, but I think I am cornered. Can you help me?

TROUBLED MIND

DEAR TROUBLED: The laws vary in different states. Talk to a lawyer. He may be able to help you get another birth certificate without disclosing the facts. It's worth a try.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "TELL ME THE TRUTH IN MILFORD, N.J.": Some women in slacks should not turn their backs. You are one.

Big Gasoline Tax Increase Draws Near

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration is flirting with a proposal to raise the federal gasoline tax by four to five cents a gallon, despite a campaign pledge last year against boosting taxes.

The administration is waiting for reaction from Congress before deciding on whether to propose an increase in the current four-cents-a-gallon federal gasoline tax.

As a revenue producer the raise would be a potent tiger in the Treasury's tank. The government said that for each one cent of additional gasoline tax, $1 billion would be brought in. For fiscal 1974, this would mean a balanced budget.

Deputy Treasury Secretary William Simon, said Tuesday a decision is expected in "the very near future."

As for President Nixon's pledge last year not to boost taxes in his second term, Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz said, "The President will have to decide what's best under the circumstances."

An increase in the federal gasoline tax would likely be passed on to consumers, as this is permitted under federal price controls.

Treasury officials said that if the administration decides to go with the proposal, it could be sold to the public because it would help conserve gasoline by discouraging sales, help balance the budget, and cut down on air pollution by encouraging more use of mass transit and car-pooling in metropolitan areas.

But Simon said a major drawback is that the hike would hurt low-income people more than other income brackets.

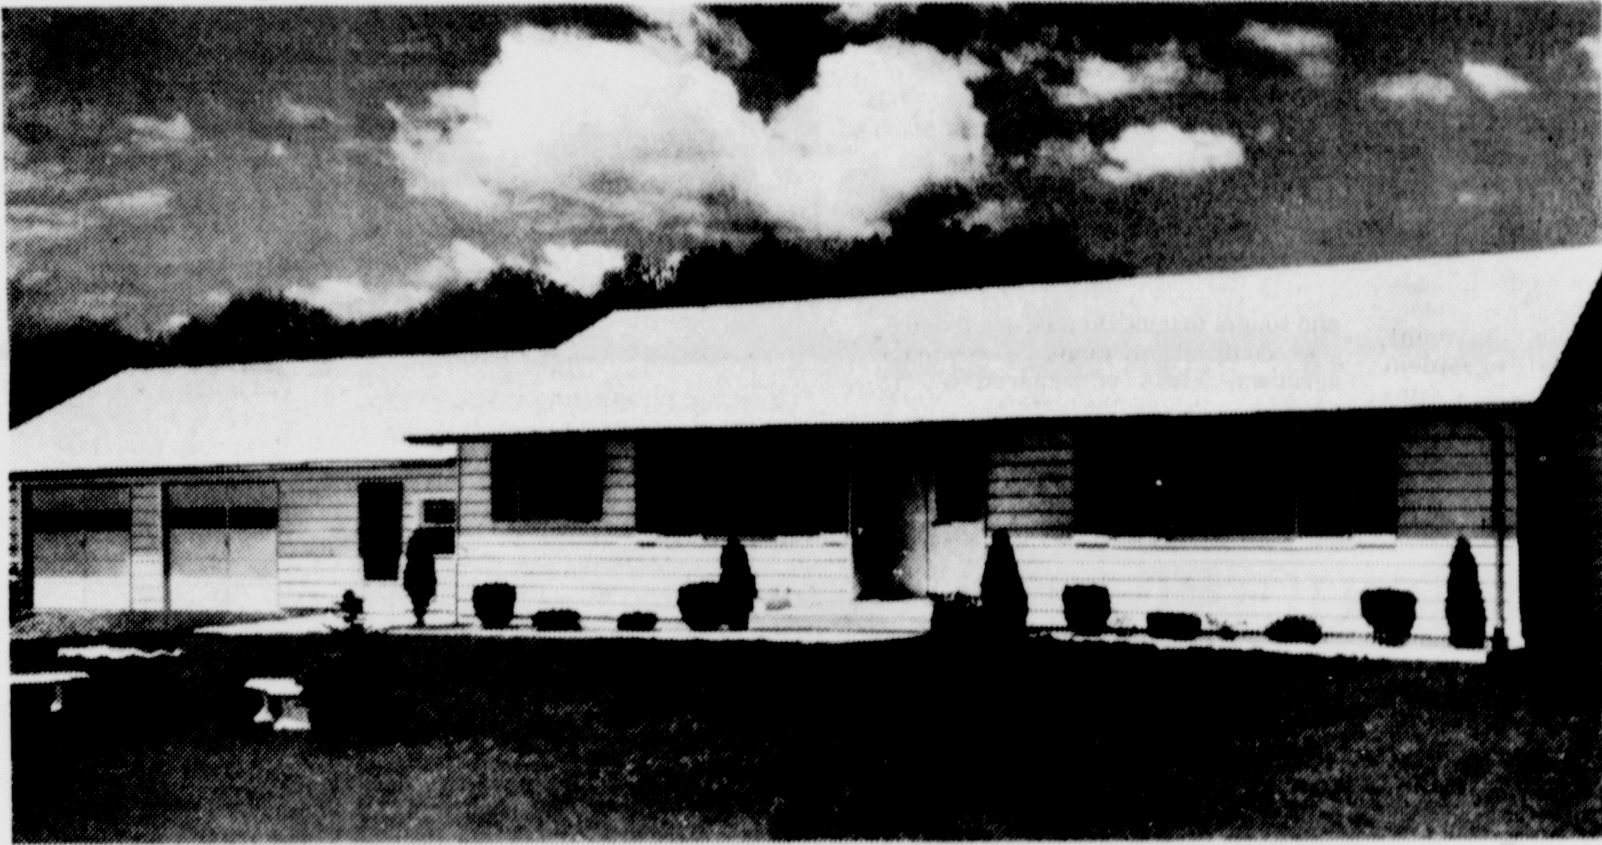

The administration has not settled on a figure for its tax proposal, but some officials indicated that most of the thinking is centered around an increase of four or five cents.

Circus Is Theme Of Prom

By CINDY MATTHEWS

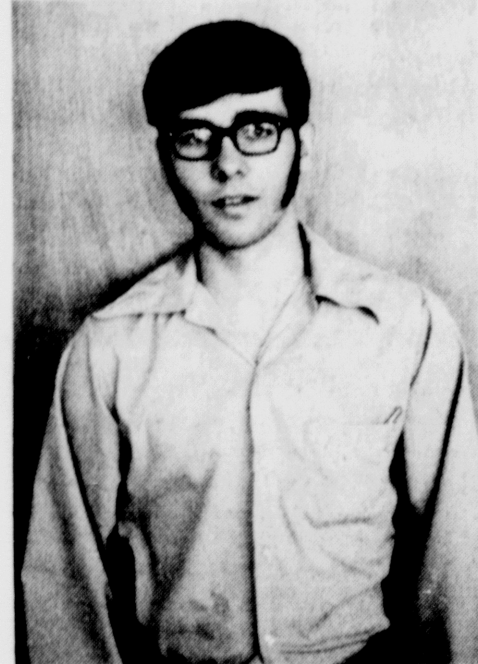

The George McDowell cafeteria took on the look of the Ringling Brothers' Big Top as the Junior Class presented the 1973 Junior-Senior Prom, "The Circus," on Saturday May 19. Clowns, balloons, elephants, and even bearded lady decorated the "rings."

The banquet for Logan Elm Juniors and Seniors only, began at 6:30 p.m. Parents of the Junior Class members, dressed up in circus costumes, served the meal. The formal dance began at 8:00 and ran until midnight. Music was by "One Year Too Soon."

After Prom, sponsored by the Senior Class, was held at the National Guard Armory above Tarlton. "Highway" provided good dancing music and helped make after prom very successful.

LE News Ends School Year

By SEPTEMBER Young

As editor of the Logan Elm News that goes into the paper every other week, this is the end of all the assignments, and rushing around to make the deadline. This is the end of another year, but the beginning of our lives being Seniors.

Speaking for all Quill and Scroll members, we have enjoyed relating our school news to you and letting you in on what's going on at LE. If you noticed bigger articles than before, and more pictures, that's to tell everyone we have just as much to say as any other school in Pickaway County, and we want everyone to know it.

We hoped you enjoyed our section as much as we enjoyed writing it. This has been quite an opportunity for me and for all my staff.

I would like to acknowledge my staff for a wonderful year filled with many enjoyable items, thanks again to Cindy Matthews, Vanessa Mills, Carla Hobbles, Judy Smith, Ann Wolford, and our adviser, Mrs. Bigam, for putting up with me this year.

The new Quill and Scroll members will be writing the LE news next year.

Cheerleading Tryouts Held

By Cindy Matthews

"I'm so nervous-I just know I'll goof up my cheer! Do I look O.K? . . . If I forget my cheer-I'll just die!"

These sounds could be heard outside the gym Thursday, May 10, when varsity and reserve cheerleading try-outs were held. It was a tough decision to make, but after doing an individual cheer, required cheers and jumps, these six girls were chosen as varsity cheerleaders for 1973-74: juniors next year, Nanci Cave and Laurie May, and seniors, Creagh Humphrey, Susan Mayberry, Debbie Penwell, and Captain Debbie Payne.

Reserve try-outs were held following varsity, and chosen were: Jill Collins, Lisa Delong, Belinda Fee, Cathy Reed, Johna Rockwell, and captain Sheryl Hatfield—all to be sophomores next year. Congratulations!!

in the Future Farmers of America.

Dennis lists as his likes motorcycles, motocross racing, cars, and driving the wrecker. His dislikes include going to school and people who believe themselves to be better than others.

Dennis plans to work on construction.

Johncock Wins Wreck-Filled, Rainy 'Indy'

SPORTS

The Circleville Herald, Thursday May 31, 1973 13

FIRST LAP INFERNO—Wally Dallenbach in car 62, and Mel Kenyon (along inside wall) drive past overturned and burning car of Salt Walther. Crash occurred in first lap of Indianapolis, Ind., 500 mile race.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The 57th Indianapolis 500-mile race ended as it began—in tragedy and in the rain.

Gordon Johncock was awarded the victory Wednesday, two weeks after Art Pollard was killed in a crash during practice, two days after David "Salt" Walther was burned badly in an aborted start of the race, and two hours after driver Swede Savage was critically injured and a crewman killed.

The triumph by the small and dapper Johncock was witnessed by and estimated 20,000 spectators surrounded by more than 200,000 empty seats at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

"I have been running races for 18 years, a lot of them very frustrating, but this has made it all worth it," said Johncock.

The race was red-flagged to a halt after 133 laps—332½ miles—because of rain. When asked if he was happy the rain came, Johncock replied: "No, I'd like to have seen it go 500 miles."

He said the only really anxious moment for him in the race was in one of the early laps when another car almost pressed him against the wall in the third turn.

"The traffic eased up in the latter part of the race and it was very comfortable riding those last laps." If the rain made Johncock unhappy, he was certainly among the majority.

A record crowd of more than 300,000 swarmed into the Speedway Monday when rain washed out the race about 20 minutes after the multiple-car crash in which Walther was seriously injured.

About 175,000 showed up Tuesday, only to watch the rain come again. And gloom and dampness also were the order of the day Wednesday. But, after a 5-hour, 10 minute wait, the race got started without incident.

Johncock averaged 159.014 miles per hour for the shortest race in the event's long history. The race was over in 2 hours, 5 minutes and 27.66 seconds.

The shortest previous Indy was in 1950 when Johnny Parsons was given the victory after 138 laps, also because of rain.

The 36-year-old Johncock is expected to get more than $200,000 in prize money from the third straight Indy purse of more than $1 million.

Johncock beat Billy Vukovich by 1 minute, 25 seconds, while third place went unofficially to Roger McCluskey. Mel Kenyon placed fourth and Gary Bettenhausen was fifth.

Savage, 26, of Santa Ana, Calif., was involved in the second serious accident in his career. He was critically injured in a sports car race at Ontario, Calif., in 1971.

He was reported in critical condition at Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis with fractured legs and burns on his face, arms and right hand.

Armando Teran, a 22-year-old bachelor from Culver City, Calif., died about one hour after he was struck by a fire truck driving the wrong way on the pit road while it hurried toward Savage's accident. He was flung about 100 feet by the impact.

Five former Indy champs, the most in one race since the 1920s, were not on the track at the end of the race.

Three-time winner A. J. Foyt Jr. lost out with two cars, breaking something in his own No. 14 Coyote, then hopping into teammate George Snider's No. 84 and running into more mechanical trouble.

Defending champ Mark Donohue, 1970 and 1971 champ Al Unser, 1969 champ Mario Andretti and Bobby Unser, who won in 1968, all met the same fate. Polesitter Johnny Rutherford, never really in the running was only one of 11 drivers still moving when the final red flag came.

Goodwill Marked Indy Repairs

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — It can take days to repair a production line domestic car, while Indianapolis 500 mechanics can rebuild an exotic $75,000 racing machine overnight. It takes a fat bankroll and bands of mechanics—or a shoestring budget and lots of good will.

Two cases in point were the battered and blistered machines of Mike Hiss of Tustin, Calif., and John Martin of Long Beach, Calif., embroiled in Monday's crash of David "Salt" Walther's car in the ill-fated first lap.

Hiss' Eagle-Offenhauser and Martin's McLaren-Offy were reworked that night and pronounced ready to race the next day. Both men still thought they could win.

"You got to get it done," said Bill Petrie, a mechanic for Hiss. "But it takes six guys with plenty of parts and 12 hours without sleep."

Hiss had the money and manpower to repair his richly endowed TTJU, King Special with parts for three cars. He has another assembled car for parts, two spare engines and boxes of miscellaneous springs and brackets.

He has $500 in measuring tools alone and a machine shop to make the parts he doesn't have. He can refiberglass his car's wings.

Six Hiss mechanics swarmed over the car from 6 p.m. Monday to 6 p.m. Tuesday to rebuild the right suspension mount, repair fuel tank panels and replace the mangled front wing and melted blue fiberglass nose of the sleek blue car.

Martin, the only unsponsored driver, didn't have the money, manpower or parts to repair his displaced front suspension and bulkhead.

He has only one complete engine, and that's in the car. He has a 1969 Brabham for cannibalized engine and gear box parts. He doesn't have a sophisticated machine shop or fulltime mechanical crew.

Ted Swintek, Martin's chief mechanic for six months of the year, said, "As usual, we do things very conservatively."

But help poured in, and Martin was deluged with offers of volunteer mechanics, free parts and machine shops.

Roy Woods' Carling Black Label team towed a spare black McLaren to the Martin garage for any and all parts.

Mechanics from various teams offered their services.

Jim Hurtubise, a former Indianapolis 500 driver, donated use of his machine shop in Indianapolis where the crew rebuilt the nose and air foils.

The Baer machine shop in Indianapolis helped Martin set his suspension and realign the wheels.

When the aborted race was completed Wednesday, neither Hiss nor Martin won, but Martin finished a surprising eighth, completing 125 of the 133 laps, while Hiss was 16th, covering 91 laps before dropping out with a broken valve.

Soaring Cards Stop Cincinnati, 5-2

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Lou Brock's on a hit rampage but concedes pitching's carrying the load for baseball's turnaround St. Louis Cardinals.

"When you've got a leadoff man leading the team in RBIs you've got to have pitching," the fleet outfielder acknowledged after the Cards rallied to win again 5-2 Wednesday night.

But the secret to the success, the Redbirds' eighth in a row, was Rich Fulkers' relief in the top of the winning and Wayne Granger's mop-up.

"We're no better than our pitching is going to take us," said Brock, whose third single highlighted a three-run late St. Louis surge.

"We've been getting tremendous pitching, but we've still got a lot of uncertainties. Alan Foster's just getting a chance to pitch regularly. Rick Fulkers is just getting the confidence he can pitch in tough situations."

The two Brock mentioned were thorns in the side of the Reds, who slammed two home runs but stranded three runners in the crucial eighth.

A weary Foster, the Cards' starter, walked Johnny Bench to lead off the inning and was replaced by Fulkers after Tony Perez singled to left-center.

Fulkers retired Bobby Tolan on a 3-and-2 pop foul inside third base, fanned pinch-hitter Phil Gagliano after uncorking a wild pitch and induced pinchhitter Richie Scheinblum to fly out.

Fulkers, 1-0, then became the winner after the Cards tattooed the Reds' Ed

Dodgers Shell Philadelphia, 9-4

By KEN RAPPOPORT

"Give me four more months like May and everything will be all right," said Los Angeles Dodger Manager Walt Alston.

Four more months like May for the Dodgers would be more than just all right—it would be fabulous.

The Dodgers had their merriest May in many summers with a sensational .313 team batting average, including an 18-hit performance Wednesday night that buried Steve Carlton and the Philadelphia Phillies 9-4.

The Dodgers averaged 11.7 runs per game in May and had a 19-8 record.

In the other National League games, the Houston Astros defeated the Chicago Cubs 4-1; the San Francisco Giants trimmed the New York Mets 3-2; the Pittsburgh Pirates turned back the Atlanta Braves 4-2; the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Cincinnati Reds 5-2 and the Montreal Expos split a doubleheader with the San Diego Padres, winning the first game 5-3 and losing the second, 3-2.

Tito Fuentes' second home run of the season, a leadoff blast in the sixth, broke a 2-2 tie and carried Tom Bradley and San Francisco over New York. Bradley knocked in the first two runs for the Giants with a single in the second.

Reserve shortstop Jackie Hernandez drove in the tiebreaking run with a sixth-inning single in Pittsburgh's victory over Atlanta. Al Oliver opened the Pittsburgh sixth with a single and stole second before scoring the winning run. Dave Cash's hit later in the inning delivered an insurance run for the Pirates.

Ted Sizemore's two-run single capped a three-run rally in the eighth inning that powered St. Louis over Cincinnati. Lou Brock's run-scoring single snapped a 2-2 tie and then Brock stole a base to put runners on second and third and set the stage for Sizemore's hit.

Bob Bailey drove in three runs with a pair of homers in Montreal's opening-game victory over San Diego. The Padres pulled out the second game on John Grubb's three-run homer in the eighth.

DeBusschere To Join Nets

NEW YORK (AP) — "I feel there's a great future in the ABA, I feel there's a great future with the Nets," said New York Knicks forward Dave DeBusschere.

He might have added Wednesday that his financial future also appears great, at least for the next 10 years. That's the length of the $75,000-a-year contract he had signed to be vice president and general manager of the New York Nets of the American Basketball Association, starting June 1, 1974.

DeBusschere, a 6-foot-6, 235-pounder considered one of the vital cogs in the Knicks' drive to two National Basketball Association championships in the past four years, still has two years remaining on his contract with the NBA club. Knicks owner Ned Irish has said that he expects DeBusschere to play next season, a fact included in the Nets' announcement.

The 32-year-old DeBusschere, who appeared at a news conference with Nets President Roy Boe and Coach Kevin Loughery, said that he had talked with Irish "and everything is fine, I think."

The Nets' general managers had been open since Lou Carnesecca resigned as coach and returned to St. John's University as coach. Loughery moved from Philadelphia of the NBA and took the Nets coaching reins.

Look Out, Golfing World; Jack Nicklaus Jr. On Way

CINCINNATI (AP) — There's nothing wrong with the golf game of Jack Nicklaus Jr. that a little time won't cure.

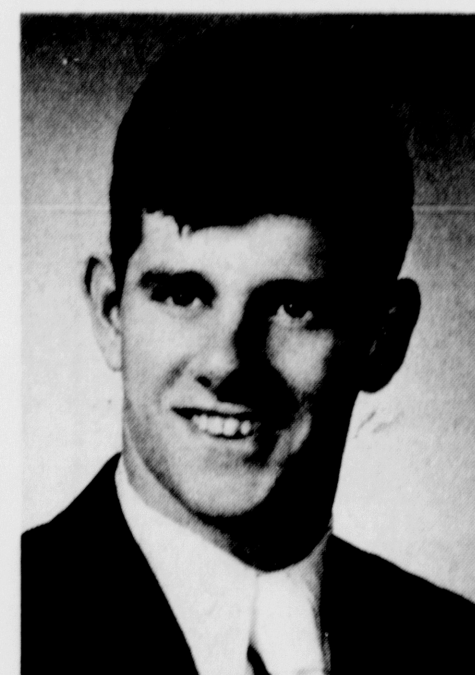

The observation comes from his father, who knows a little bit about kids and a lot about golf.

"He does very well," said Nicklaus of his 11-year-old son. "But he is only a kid and I want him to stay a kid for a while."

Jack Jr., who takes lessons from the man who coached his father, has already scored in the 70s.

"Too much is being said about his golf game for his own good," said Nicklaus, who visited the Cincinnati area this week, stumping for the newly-added PGA tournament scheduled to be played at his course 20 miles north of here Oct. 1-7.

Young Nicklaus is being tutored by Jack Grout, the man who helped blend the talents that produced one of the game's greats.

WITTENBERG BOUND—Bob Foster, stellar linebacker for Amanda-Clearcreek, has signed a letter of intent to cast his football lot with Wittenberg College this fall. The 6-foot-1, 180 pound athlete was tabbed A-C Athlete of the year, all Mid-State, first team all-district and honorable mention all-Ohio. Foster was also a starter on the Aces' basketball and baseball teams. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Foster, Route 2, Amanda.

"He won't listen to me anymore," said a laughing Nicklaus, who set an all-time golf record last year with earnings of $320,000. "I don't know anything about golf."

"The other day we were playing after he had a lesson and I suggested something to him. He looked over at me and said 'Aw come on dad, Mr. Grout didn't tell me that.'"

Golf isn't the only thing young Jack has taken a liking to.

"Yeh, he's discovered girls, too," said his dad.

"Anytime I'm missing a comb or a brush I can always go to his closet and find it," said Nicklaus.

The PGA tournament, which Nicklaus said "should bring in most of the touring pros, will be held on a layout being billed as "The course that Jack built."

"It's not the prettiest piece of property in the world, but a golf course it is. Torrey Pines—the famous California course—is a beautiful piece of property, but a golf course it is not," said Nicklaus.

Palmer, Casper Need Help

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper, two of the finest players the game of golf has produced, are in considerable danger of being among the missing when the United States' Ryder Cup team is named later this summer.

Between them they've won more than 100 tour titles and almost $5 million in prize money. But the two veterans—Palmer is 43, Casper 41—both are having their problems this season for the second year in a row. It's almost unbelievable, but neither now ranks among the top 12 eligible players on the selection list.

And time is running out.

The team will be made up of the top 12 eligible players on a point list which closes at the end of the Western Open July 1. Only five more tournaments remain and neither is going to play all of those.

Each needs a strong finish, first or second, to make it. And each needs it in the $200,000 Kemper Open, which began today on the 7,278 yard, par 72 Quail Hollow Country Club course. Each is scheduled for only one or two more starts before the team is picked.

Only 12 players will be named. Selection to the team that will play the British at Muirfield, Scotland, Sept. 20-22 is one of the most coveted honors among American players on the tour.

Red Schoendienst, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals since 1965, batted .289 in 2,216 National League games.

Rangers Defeat Cleveland, 3-2

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
Manager Whitey Herzog thought he finally had the evidence on Gaylord Perry...an icky, sticky baseball.

But all the Texas Manager had was an early shower and it's really a shame because the Rangers beat Cleveland 3-2 Wednesday night. Considering the frequency of his team's victories, Herzog can't afford to miss any.

Herzog got the thumb from umpire Art Frantz in the seventh inning for yelling too loud and too long over Perry's alleged wet one. The manager brought a greasy ball to the plate as evidence but Frantz wasn't buying any of that.

The Rangers beat Perry on a run in the ninth inning with Dave Nelson's one-out single chasing it home. Jim Mason, whose RBI-single in the seventh tied the game, contributed a key hit to the winning rally.

Elsewhere in the American League, New York nipped Oakland 4-3, Boston edged California 2-1, Baltimore topped Kansas City 5-4, Milwaukee shut out Minnesota 4-0 and Detroit defeated Chicago 8-3.

Dwight Evans socked a tiebreaking home run in the seventh inning and then robbed Mike Epstein of a two-run homer with a leaping catch in the ninth to help Boston win its small war with California.

Both dugouts and bullpens emptied in the seventh inning when California's Al Gallagher and catcher Carlton Fisk of the Red Sox, who had collided in a play at the plate two innings earlier, began bumping. Rico Petrocelli of Boston and California's Jeff Torborg exchanged punches before order was restored.

Bobby Darwin jolted a three-run homer and Bill Hands pitched a four-hitter as Minnesota shut out Milwaukee 4-0, extending the Brewers' scoreless streak to 21 innings.

Thurman Munson's eighth inning homer gave the Yankees their victory over Oakland, fifth straight loss for the defending world champions.

Detroit whipped Chicago in a match of the two division leaders. Gates Brown and Aurelio Rodriguez clubbed homers for the Tigers and Mickey Lolich coasted to his fourth victory. Rodriguez' two-run homer capped a four-run Tiger rally in the sixth that put Detroit in command.

Rookie reliever Bob Reynolds shut off a ninth inning Kansas City rally and saved Baltimore's victory over the Royals.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Seek the right advice from a good friend and become a more dynamic person. Avoid a person who has an eye on your assets. Think constructively and be more optimistic in your views.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You are able to get the advice and aid of a business expert that you need now. Engaging in a new outlet can add to your present abundance. Find a better way to start an uptrend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Use that good judgment you have and be of assistance to others. The favor will be returned later. Make yourself more attractive by taking health treatments. Dress in good taste.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't permit a situation at home keep you from taking care of routine duties. Show more devotion to mate and get better results. A thoughtful gift is wise. Keep all appointments.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those delightful young people who likes to take responsibility, so be sure to give an opportunity to do just that, otherwise the fine promise here will be limited. There is a stickler for perfection here as well as an inventive genius. Give as much religious training as your progeny needs. Sports are a must. Give as much education as you can afford.

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — The ABC Television network tonight is airing a commendable study of nuclear energy as a major solution to the nation's energy crisis. Alas, the show has a crisis of its own.

It's about energy, but lacks it. Entitled "The Energy Crisis: The Nuclear Alternative," it is a dull primer on the proliferation and problems of nuclear-powered electric generating plants in the United States.

The plants have aroused much controversy, but you'd wonder why if this program were your sole guide to the subject. It's so low-key and dispassionate, it may cause slumber instead of interest. To its credit, it does correctly emphasize that there'll be no mushroom cloud of an atomic explosion even if the worst happens at a nuclear plant; the plants are in no way potential A-bombs. And it does let opposing factions on the show discuss at length the safety of nuclear power plants, where the primary danger in a major accident would be a "venting" of radioactive matter into the air or ground.

But nowhere in the show is there a specific example of any kind of mishap or incident at a nuclear power plant.

Such an example, with illustrations and expert opinion on what went wrong and why, would have greatly helped viewers decide whether present safeguards are adequate or if more are needed.

According to an Atomic Energy Commission spokesman, there has been only one radiological accident—which he defined as a serious incident resulting in plant damage or human injury—in the history of any commercial nuclear plant in the United States.

He said no one was hurt in that accident, which occurred in the reactor section of a small plant near Detroit in 1966.

Through the show, we visit operating plants, hear experts and critics of AEC safety guidelines, visit the worlds of thermal pollution and nuclear waste storage and examine other potential sources of power.

All this makes the show seem too broad and diffused. For my dough, it would have had far more impact had it truly concentrated on the continuing debate over the safety of nuclear power plants.

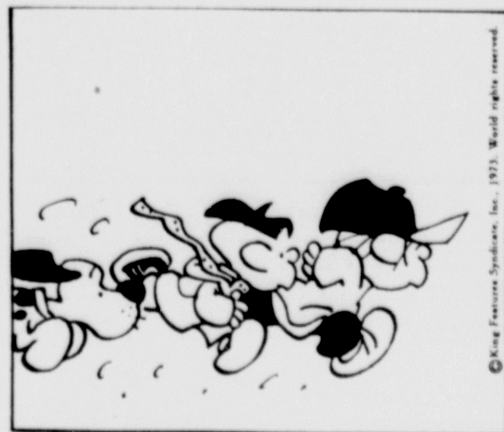

Bible Displayed

NEW YORK (AP) — The Masonic Bible used by George Washington in his first inauguration in 1789 has returned to Federal Hall here.

The exhibit commemorates the first presidential inauguration which was held on the balcony of the original Federal Hall. The exhibit was designed for the White House and has been on display there since the first of the year.

The Masonic Bible is on loan from St. John's Masonic Lodge No. 1 in New York. The same Bible was also used for the inauguration of Presidents Harding and Eisenhower.

Babies' Eyesight
Can Be Checked

NEW YORK (AP) — How well does your baby see? Eye specialists can now examine a toddler's vision even before he can talk.

Dr. Alden N. Haffner, consultant to the Society for Visual Care, recommends that babies' eyes should be tested no later than age 3.

"In fact, children between 1 and 3 respond more rapidly to corrective therapy than older children," he said. "We often see patients as young as six months at the Infants' Vision Clinic, a recently established department of the Optometric Center of New York."

The examinations indicate whether treatment should be prescribed.

In a majority of cases, proper eye exercise or therapeutic lenses may solve most existing problems, Dr. Haffner said.

Eye specialists agree that millions of American children are poor learners because of poor visual abilities and that many of the disabilities go undetected for years. The time to treat inadequate vision is before the child enters grade school, Haffner added.

"There is no reason why a child should suffer the psychological scars of problems caused by uncorrected, inadequate vision," he emphasized. "Children may be frustrated in adapting to life if vision handicaps them in school performance or play activities."

"For instance, examination of one 11-year-old child in public school during a visual screening revealed her vision was so poor that she was mislabeled legally blind or heavily myopic."

"No one had previously bothered to take the time to examine her thoroughly. And because there was a language problem, there was poor communication between the doctor and the little girl."

Heartworm
Disease Comes
From Mosquitoes

CHICAGO (AP) — Many dogs annually fall victim to canine heartworm disease, which in its advanced stages causes impaired breathing, coughing, listlessness and weight loss. If not detected and treated, the disease can lead to extensive organ damage and death, warns the American Veterinary Medical Assn.

Canine heartworm disease is caused by long white worms called Dirofilaria immitis. The disease can reach advanced stages and even cause death before signs become apparent to the owner. In its early stages heartworm disease can be detected using a blood test. Sometimes an infected dog will have adult worms but no larvae in the blood. To confirm the infection in these cases, a veterinarian must use X-rays and other laboratory tests.

Technically known as dirofilariasis, canine heartworm disease is transmitted by mosquitoes. When biting an infected dog, a mosquito may take up blood containing larval forms of the heartworm that are microscopic in size. After a 2-week incubation period in the mosquito, the larvae become infective. If the larvae are transmitted by the mosquito to another dog, they migrate through the body to the heart.

Teachers Warned
Of Pupil Traps

LONDON (AP) — Permissiveness and sexual sophistication among children has put many traps in the path of teachers, according to "The Teacher."

The weekly newspaper of Britain's National Union of Teachers advises young teachers to avoid being alone with a child of either sex, and warns them to refrain from unnecessary physical contact with pupils.

Sheriff, Antioch
Protesters Meet

YELLOW SPRINGS, Ohio (AP)—Principals in the Antioch College strike will meet today with the Greene County sheriff before a preliminary injunction to reopen the college is enforced.

Greene County Common Pleas Court Judge Dan Aultman, who granted the injunction Wednesday, called a meeting with Greene County Sheriff Russell Bradley, the attorneys in the hearing and college officials.

Bradley said Wednesday he hoped to find a way to reopen the campus without physical confrontation.

Antioch has been closed since April 20 by students striking for guaranteed financial aid. The injunction suit was filed by students who wished to return to school.

"A properly-enrolled student has a legal right to access to facilities required to pursue his education," Aultman said in granting the injunction. "It is a denial of his rights and a violation of his rights to deny him that access."

College officials, who were named defendants, will decide whether to appeal the injunction after today's meeting.

The injunction restrains strikers from locking or barricading buildings and threatening anyone attempting to enter the buildings.

Dean Ewell Reagin testified Tuesday that students would receive credit and that seniors would graduate despite the strike. Some instructors have conducted classes in homes and offices for non-striking students.

Reagin and an aide were pelted with eggs May 22 when they tried to reopen the college and enter several campus buildings. Striking students locked arms and barred them from the buildings. Following that incident, seven faculty members were dismissed and 20 students expelled.

So far, there have been only minor scuffles and slight injuries.

About two-thirds of the 1,100 students enrolled at Antioch receive some federal or state aid. Tuition at the liberal arts college is $3,000 per year.

College officials say that because of threatened cuts in federal aid they can guarantee financial assistance to low and middle income students for more than two years. The strikers rejected that offer.

Ohio Youth
Wounded

Concord, N.C. (AP) — Police report that a youth was shot twice and dropped from a moving car Wednesday night.

They said he had identified himself as 19-year-old Roy "Butch" Ashbrook, and told them his mother, Mrs. Bertha Ashbrook, lives in Miamisburg, Ohio.

The Cabarrus County sheriff's department at Concord reported that a truckdriver saw him tumble from a car on Interstate 85 near North Kannapolis, in the Concord vicinity.

The department said he was taken to Cabarrus Memorial Hospital in Concord, where he was discovered to have bullet wounds in the back and the jaw. The hospital said his condition was not critical.

The department quoted him as saying he had been given a ride while hitchhiking, but as not remembering much more immediately.

President's Pals Got Fast Action On Bank Charter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two men who negotiated separate personal real estate deals with President Nixon are principals in a new bank that sought and received its federal charter between the dates of the land transactions.

A presidential spokesman says no one at the White House was involved in the bank charter. Records at the comptroller of the currency's office show nothing out of the ordinary about the charter grant to Hudson Valley National Bank of Yonkers, N.Y.

The two men are Robert Abplanalp, a multimillionaire industrialist, and William E. Griffin Jr., a Yonkers attorney who handles legal work for Abplanalp and his business.

Abplanalp was disclosed Friday as the owner for the past 2½ years of much of the grounds at Nixon's San Clemente, Calif., retreat. He paid $1,249,000 for the land within the walled Nixon compound on Dec. 15, 1970. 17 months earlier, he had loaned Nixon $625,000 so the President initially could buy the seaside property.

Griffin purchased two Key Biscayne, Fla., lots from Nixon in December 1972 for $150,000. The lots had cost Nixon $53,100. They are about 12 blocks from the Florida White House compound.

Griffin said, "I don't understand how you could make any connection" between the bank charter and his land purchase. He added that he is in the process of selling the lots at a profit.

Abplanalp has been ill and was unavailable for comment.

White House press aide Gerald Warren said: "No one at the White House was aware of or involved in any way, with this charter application."

The bank organizers made their first approach to the regional office of the comptroller of the currency in April 1971, four months after Abplanalp purchased the San Clemente land.

Their formal application was received Aug. 11, 1971. The comptroller of the currency signed his approval Dec. 21, 1971. The bank opened for business May 13, 1972.

Griffin acted as agent for the bank and was one of seven organizers. He purchased $125,000 of the original $2.5 million stock issue, the same amount as most of the other organizers.

Abplanalp has never been listed as an organizer or director. But he purchased $115,000 in stock, highest of any non-organizer stockholder. An Abplanalp spokesman said a number of other employees at Abplanalp's Precision Valve Corp. purchased lesser amounts of the bank stock.

A spokesman for the comptroller of the currency said the application was handled routinely. The agency concerns itself principally with the question of a need for a new bank and whether the organizers have the background and experience to fulfill the need.

Coaching Staff Employed By Westfall Board

Westfall's Board of Education met Wednesday in a continued session to assign teachers for supplemental posts, including coaching staff.

Supplemental coaching positions were given to:

Alan Gabriel, assistant football and head baseball; Tom Hamman, assistant football, junior varsity basketball and head track coach; William Montgomery, junior high football, assistant baseball; Jeff Tracy, cross country; Charles Wilcox, 9th grade basketball.

Other coaching assignments are to be made later, Superintendent Gordon Massie reported.

Also employed under supplemental contracts were Jeanne Reid, high school cheerleader adviser; Margene Moore, junior high GAA adviser; James Kibby, high school and junior high marching band instructor; R. W. Wellington, activity bookkeeper and newspaper adviser.

Edwin Towler, Route 3, Mt. Sterling, was employed as custodian for the high school to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Cecil Sowers.

Employment contracts were offered to 15 people who complete the non-teaching staff, including secretaries, custodians, cooks and bus drivers. A resignation was accepted from Helen Whitesed, school bus driver.

Two new text series, in math and social science, were approved for grades 1-6.

The board will meet again June 11 to select a new head basketball coach.

Attending Wednesday's meeting were James Dean, Dave Long, Bruce Stevenson Jr. and Cooke Metzger. Mrs. Jeanne Lett was absent.

GI Denies Aiding, Abetting Enemy

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP) — One of eight former POWs charged with misconduct by an officer says the charges are "unfounded" and he plans a $1 million damage suit in retaliation.

Seething, his dark eyes flashing, the dark, gaunt Spec. 4 Michael Branch said "I couldn't believe it at first . . . that's why I had to get away for a couple of days."

Branch was notified by telephone Monday from Ft. Knox, Ky., that a complaint had been lodged against him and seven other men who spent time in the "Plantation" prisoner of war camp in Hanoi.

The complaint was filed by Col. Theodore Guy, senior officer of all POWs in North Vietnam.

Branch sipped a mixed drink and drew a diagram of the camp while he talked with newsmen aboard a houseboat on the Ohio River Wednesday night. The boat is owned by his attorney, William Hagedorn of Newport.

Hagedorn said the suit will seek damages because it defamed Branch, his parents and might upset current divorce litigation against his wife, Marilyn, in Indianapolis, Ind. The custody of their two children is at stake, he said.

Branch, 26, and the others are charged in the complaint with cooperating with the enemy. He is also charged with insulting Air Force Maj. Edward Leonard of Winlock, Wash., in October, 1971.

Fingering the diagram, Branch explained the "insult" saying that "somebody said something—it wasn't me."

He said prisoners in his compound were being marched out to a bath house when "Leonard, with a bunch of other officers, hollered something to us. I stopped and looked because I couldn't hear. The guards were also yelling and we moved on."

"I knew Leonard had yelled something, but I didn't know what until later."

Branch said he learned later that they had been ordered to stop all forms of cooperation and collaboration with the enemy."

Branch was asked what would have happened if he and the other men had obeyed that order of non-cooperation, and he said:

Reds Use Tanks In South Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government thinks a Communist tank attack Wednesday near Hue was only a probe and not the beginning of an offensive against the former imperial capital, a government spokesman said today.

It was the first Communist tank attack since the cease-fire four months ago.

The Saigon command said North Vietnamese or Viet Cong infantrymen with three Russian BT76 amphibious tanks crossed the Rao Nai river and attacked a government position 18 miles southwest of Hue.

When the attackers were 300 yards from the defense perimeter, the South Vietnamese called in artillery that destroyed one tank and killed 15 of the enemy soldiers, a spokesman said.

He said the other two tanks fled back across the river. One government soldier was reported wounded.

A government communique also reported Communist gunners fired 115 rounds of artillery and mortar fire at three other positions west of Hue but there were no government casualties.

Earlier, military sources said they were trying to determine the strength of the tank force to assess whether the attack heralded a new offensive against Hue.

The attacked post is part of a defensive arc running through jungled mountains west and southwest of the city. According to field reports, the whole network has come under continuous and increasing North Vietnamese and Viet Cong pressure in recent weeks. American sources report at least one government position has been given up, but the Saigon command has not announced this.

Meanwhile, the Viet Cong charged the United States with a new air attack on Communist territory inside South Vietnam. It claimed three flights of U.S. F4 Phantoms and a C130 bombed and strafed around Xom Mat, 75 miles north of Saigon, on May 29. The area is close to the Cambodian border, and the Viet Cong has charged the United States with air attacks there before. But the United States denied the latest charge as it has the previous ones.

The Viet Cong also charged that the South Vietnamese government has been sending reconnaissance commandos into areas under Communist control. It said one such intruder, Sgt. Nguyen Dinh Chien, was captured in mid-May in Binh Dinh province, on the central coast. Chien said he had conducted two other reconnaissance missions in Viet Cong territory to select targets for air strikes, the Viet Cong said.

Meanwhile, the head of the Canadian delegation to the International Commission of Control and Supervision, Michel Gauvin, said he would take over the commission's rotating chairmanship for June as scheduled but would call no meetings unless a deadlock over reports of North Vietnamese infiltration is resolved.

This would bring the commission to a standstill since no reports of investigations of truce violations could be completed. However, the commission's field teams could still carry out investigations requested by the Viet Cong or South Vietnamese locally.

The Canadian government announced its decision this week to quit the peacekeeping commission by July 31, or earlier if a replacement is found.

George D. Solt, 58, Route 2, Ashville, 75 miles per hour in a 60 zone.

Harold Osborne Grant, 78, 219 S. Pickaway St., failure to yield the right of way.

Booze And Bark Causes Accident

A 36-year-old Circleville man was injured and cited for driving while intoxicated when he ran his pickup truck into a tree 6:08 p.m. Wednesday at S. Court and Logan Sts.

According to the report of Ptl. Mike Eberhard, James E. Browning, 226 Town St., was traveling south on Court St. He attempted to make a left turn onto Logan St. and struck the tree.

"The same thing would have happened that always happened when you didn't do what you were told—they tie you up, beat you, and throw you back into solitary. This is what they always did whenever anyone resisted. It happened to all of this."

Branch was asked if he feared execution by the guards if he disobeyed. "No, no one ever died."

Branch disputed reports from officers that a command and communications system had been set up in prison camps, at least for most of his imprisonment—four years and 10 months.

"It was toward the end, in late 1972 when we were all moved to the Hanoi Hilton," Branch said. "The war was ending. The Vietnamese didn't want any trouble and the officers—I think—wanted to make a show of organization."
